ICE KING BREATHES ON WHOLE B.C. COAST

Cold Wave Runs Far South Into The United States

Zero Readings Extend Even to Kansas-Nebraska Border; Nova Scotians Shiver While People of Canadian Prairies Also See Mercury Below Zero

Canadian Press

Toronto, Feb. 7.—The Maritimes and the Pacific Coast today felt the bite of cold which spread out, fan fashion, after confining itself for a long spell to the country between.

Spawned in the northern tundra, winter's most widespread cold wave cloaked the country from coast to coast, but a measure of relief came to Quebec and Ontario from the bitter chill of the last day or so.

Quebec city charted that province's maximum cold at eight below zero. Elsewhere in the province it was milder.

IN UNITED STATES

Associated Press

Chicago, Feb. 7.—A new torrent of cutting cold raged down both slopes of the Rocky Mountains today as the flood gates of the Arctic were opened again.

Sudden chill stabbed Montana, Idaho, Washington and Wyoming when the frost wave leaped the Canadian border and sped south to both east and west.

The biting blast carried new numbness for a midwest just beginning to thaw, and the nation's northwestern icebox saw most cold records shattered.

The mercury sank to forty-four below zero at Bejidji, Minn. Fresh snow fell, and engineers gave up all

RABBIT HAIRS ARE EVIDENCE

Slain Girl's Sweater Is Exhibit at H. O'Donnell Trial in Toronto

Canadian Press

Toronto, Feb. 7.—Prof. Joselyn Rogers, provincial analyst, testified at Harry O'Donnell's trial on a charge of murder today no difference could be found, by chemical test or under the microscope, between rabbit hairs of the material of slain Ruth Taylor's sweater and hairs plucked from O'Donnell's clothing the day after her body was found in a Toronto ravine.

Prof. Rogers declared also blue rabbit hairs found in the material of baby clothing in the O'Donnell home did not correspond to the rabbit hairs found on O'Donnell's clothes. They gave a distinctly different chemical reaction.

OF DIFFERENT SHADE

Rabbit hairs of the baby's bonnet were structurally alike but much

CANADA TO HAVE MUSEUM OF SOUNDS

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—Nucleus of a museum of sounds, preserving for posterity the voices of great figures and audible records of events that cannot be re-enacted, has been formed by the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission.

The archives of speeches and other sounds so far contain six addresses of the late King George and a record made at the first birthday party of the Dionne quintuplets.

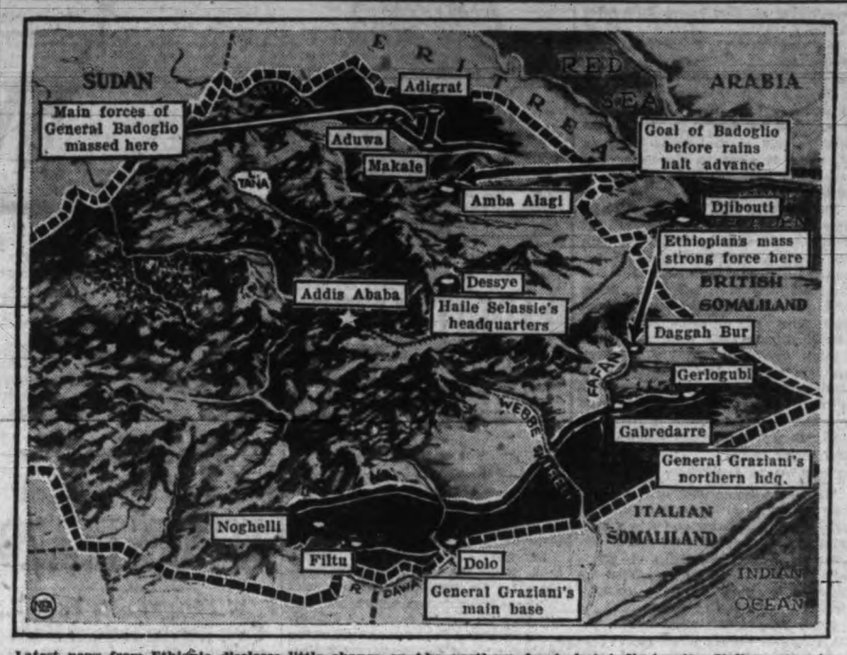
Troops Battle in South As Ethiopian Forces Shifted



Latest news from Ethiopia discloses little change on the northern front, but indicates the Italians are attempting to extend their recent gains in the south. To meet that threat Emperor Haile Selassie's leaders are rushing thousands of warriors southward, hoping to halt and outflank the Italian columns before the rainy season sets in.

ABERHART NOW CALLS DOUGLAS

Premier Wants Londoner to Help Shape Alberta's Social Credit

Canadian Press

Edmonton, Feb. 7.—Premier Aberhart announced today the dispatch of a letter from the Alberta Government to Major C. H. Douglas of London, Eng., founder of Social Credit principles and "reconstruction adviser" to the province.

Mr. Aberhart refused to reveal the contents of the letter at the present time, declaring it would be a breach of ethics. It was recalled, however, that he had said a week ago that he would cable or write to Mr. Douglas "within a few days," asking the Briton to come to Alberta to consider Social Credit plans at the close of the present session of the Legislature.

FORMER CROWN PRINCE OF SPAIN

Havana, Feb. 7.—The Count of Covadonga, twenty-eight-year-old former heir to the Spanish throne, who renounced his royal rights so he could marry a Cuban commoner, was critically ill to-day, a sufferer from the haemophilia common to male members of his family.

The count was reported near death yesterday evening at his apartment in the Vedado section of Havana and the Papal Nuncio, Archbishop Jorge Caruana, administered extreme unction, but a spokesman announced today that a blood transfusion was proceeding successfully.

Temperature Here Slips To Nine Degrees Above Zero, Coldest In Years

Cold Wave Which Has Been Sweeping Continent Reaches British Columbia and Causes Residents of Coast Cities to Shiver; Wind Is Expected to Die Down But Mercury Is Expected to Make Another Plunge Tonight

Garagemen, Plumbers And Fuel Men Busy

Victoria's plumbers, fuel merchants and service station men responded to a steady flood of trouble calls from home owners with frozen pipes or empty fuel bins, and car owners with frozen radiators.

The majority of them this morning considered today's sudden drop in the thermometer had given them as much business as the cold spell of January last year.

PLUMBERS AWAIT THAW

Plumbers have been in brisk demand but will be busier still when the ice in the pipes melts out and the cracks are revealed.

SERVICE STATIONS

Service stations had their rush in the early hours, when people went to their garages to start their cars and found the cooling system frozen.

National Motors reported that about 9 o'clock their big garage was filled so full with cars with frozen radiators that it was impossible to get any more in. Their two tow cars were kept perpetually busy hauling in casualties. A fair proportion of the cars were suffering from cracked cylinder blocks, a far more serious trouble than frozen radiators.

The Standard Service Station and Cliff Prescott's station, on opposite corners of the intersection of Yates and Blanshard, found most of their business in selling anti-freeze. Both stations, along with many others in other parts of the city, had no water supply with outside pipes frozen solid.

Red's Service Station, on Yates Street, reported the towing car kept busy all morning, and cases of cars whose engines would not turn over because the water pumps were frozen.

Jones's Garage, at Yates and Quadra, reported car batteries put out of commission by the cold.

FUEL MERCHANTS

Among fuel merchants there were unvarying reports of a flood of business.

The Cameron Wood and Coal Company reported a considerable increase in orders, but was unable to estimate its extent.

The Camosun Coal Company said "We've been glued to the phone all morning. It is almost on a par with last year about this time, but not quite."

ODDITIES OF COLD WAVE

The City Hall clock stopped at 4.05 o'clock this morning with the oil in the bearings frozen solid. It is two years since the clock last succumbed to a cold spell. The stoppage is always an excellent gauge of the extent of a cold wave.

Seven women out of every ten today are wearing silk stockings, in spite of the icy wind, a reporter of The Times found this morning after a careful study of the people hurrying along Douglas Street.

There are a little over 12,000 cars in Victoria at present. Service station men estimate that two cars out of every three have filled up with anti-freeze within the last few days and that each car takes about a gallon. Anti-freeze costs $4 a gallon on the average, so the city's bill for radiator service alone is about $32,000.

"I was frozen so stiff I could not even shiver," was the graphic way one man who went out on a service station's towing truck this morning described the cold.

Officials of Central Films Limited looked out of the Willows studio door with envy today at a clear sky and excellent light for photography. It is not only out of consideration for the ears, hands and feet of their cast that they are working indoors. If they went outside the breath of horses and men would show in clouds of steam, and there is no suggestion of such a thing in the script.

Firemen Hampered By Cold Weather

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Feb. 7.—Fire damaged machinery and stock in the waterproofing department of the Jones Tent and Awning Co. Ltd. here today. The loss was estimated at $10,000.

A number of small fires were reported, but no other serious damage was done.

Firemen were handicapped by the cold weather as many water mains were frozen.

Temperature Lower In Nearby Districts

Victorians literally broke the ice on their windows this morning to look out on a freezing world, with the temperature the lowest in twenty-seven years. At the Meteorological Observatory on Gonzales Hill slight relief was promised, when it was stated the biting north wind would probably die down during the day, although frigid temperatures were expected again tonight.

Between 5 and 6 o'clock this morning the thermometer dropped to nine degrees, which was twenty-three degrees of frost. By 9 o'clock, under the influence of a brilliant sun, it had risen to eleven degrees, and at 10 o'clock it stood at thirteen.

At 4 o'clock this morning, with the temperature at eleven degrees, the wind was blowing from the northeast at thirty-two miles an hour. It was this wind that did damage to pipes and caused homes to be cold and draughty, despite roaring fires and extra curtains and drapes over doors and windows.

While these temperatures were the official ones at Gonzales, other more exposed parts of the city and the outlying districts reported much colder temperatures. At Gordon Head this morning it fell to two degrees above zero. At 7 o'clock this morning the thermometer outside Kelway's Cafe on Douglas Street recorded eight degrees above. A thermometer on lower Yates Street at 8 o'clock showed three degrees above.

At Metchosin a temperature of four degrees above was recorded at midnight. Residents there also found the temperature dropped after sunrise, which was a most unusual condition.

F. Napier Denison, superintendent at Gonzales, explained the lowest temperatures are usually recorded just before sunrise.

RISES AT NOON

At noon today the thermometer at the Observatory had risen to fifteen degrees. It was expected to rise a little more during the afternoon be-

Seek Re-audit of City Departments

Move By Aldermen For Independent Examination Follows Report Another Shortage Has Occurred

An independent audit of the accounts of all city departments will be sought at the next meeting of the City Council it is understood, as a direct outcome of recently-discovered shortages in the road and poll tax collections which resulted in the dismissal of the collector.

The request for the new audit follows reports that another has been discovered.

It is also learned there is dissatisfaction over the reorganization of the City Hall staff, which followed recommendations of the finance committee.

These recommendations were presented without approval of the auditors or the city comptroller, and when they were introduced at the camera session of the council on Monday they drew protests from some aldermen on these grounds.

The dismissal of the road and poll tax collector followed discovery by the auditors of a shortage of $4,743 in his collections when they were auditing his accounts for renewal of his bond.

CUT DOWN ON RELIEF LOANS

Municipalities Must Finance Own Share of Costs This Year

Loans from the provincial government to finance the municipal share of relief costs will not be available this year, the treasury department said today.

Municipal councils inquiring about loans to carry them on 1936 budgets have been informed that they will be expected to provide the funds to pay their proportion of the relief bill.

Under the new division of relief costs arranged last month, the municipalities now pay 20 per cent of the cost, half what they had paid previously.

Many municipalities have financed their own share of relief throughout the depression, but others have had to borrow from the government.

In the last fiscal year, these loans totaled $341,490, and up to March 31, 1935, an aggregate of $1,295,491 had been advanced. This makes a total of $1,636,981 which the municipalities are indebted to the province on account of relief.

New Crisis Seen At Naval Conference

Italians and French at London Object to U.S. Plan of Battleships of 35,000 Tons; Suggest 27,500 Be Limit

Associated Press

London, Feb. 7.—The Italian delegation to the International Naval Conference backed up the French today in an attack on the United States policy of maintaining large battleships.

The Franco-Italian attack was launched before the technical committee of the conference. That body is charged with the specification of qualitative limitation—that is, naval limitation according to categories and types of vessels and guns.

The French delegates demanded the maximum size of battleships be 27,500 tons.

LONG CRUISES

Representatives of the United States, however, stood firm in their demand that the maximum limit remain at 35,000 tons, contending the

EXPECT FOOD PRICES RISE

Cold May Kill Off Local Broccoli Crop; Cabbages Jump $20 Ton

The wintry wind and near zero weather has slowed up work on wholesale row.

Victoria's market men looked out through frosted windows at the deserted streets today and awaited indications of what the cold has done to crops.

Already cabbage prices have jumped $20 a ton, eggs have risen two to three cents a dozen, and large sizes of oranges are up ten to fifteen cents a case.

Time, however, will tell how much damage the record cold has done to other crops.

Wholesalers expect that if this weather continues for another day the entire local winter broccoli crops will be killed off. Cauliflower can stand a day or so of arctic weather, but not much more.

There is a possibility that root crops which have not been stored in frost-proof cellars or houses have been damaged.

Precautions were taken on wholesale row yesterday, when there were indications that the mercury was going down. Drivers and warehouse men worked overtime to move two carloads of fruit from the docks to the storage rooms. Oil heaters were turned on full blast during the night.

Low temperatures mean fast work, for whenever any produce arrives now trucks have to be on hand and warehouse crews ready to rush it out of the freezing cold into the store rooms.

Policeman Dies of Wound In Winnipeg

Charles Gillis Succumbs to Effects of Shot; Ian Bryson Faces Charge of Murder

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Feb. 7.—Four hours after the death of Constable Charles Gillis, whom he is alleged to have wounded during an attempt hold-up last January 24, twenty-two-year-old Ian Bryson was charged with murder in the police court here today.

He was remanded till February 13, when he also will face four charges of robbery.

The murder charge was laid personally by Chief of Police George Smith and supplanted a previous charge of attempted murder preferred at the time of his arrest.

An inquest into the shooting of the constable will be opened tomorrow.

CALLED BY TELEPHONE

Constable Gillis, with Constable George Blow, went to a service station in downtown Winnipeg January 24 in a police cruiser car when

Relief Office Needs Clothes and Blankets

Warm clothing and blankets are urgently needed by the City Relief Office. The sudden freezing weather has brought a steady flood of applications for these two, as well as fos fuel and for plumbing service. The office has received a sizeable donation of fuel, but it appeals to all more fortunate persons in Victoria to think of those in less happy circumstances than themselves, and to send to the office all clothing and blankets that they can spare.

an informant telephoned police a hold-up was under way.

Constable Gillis grabbed Bryson, twenty-two, who was running from the scene. As they went down, a shot was fired and Gillis fell wounded in the stomach. Blow tripped Bryson, who, according to the police, dropped a revolver.

As Constable Blow overpowered Bryson, Constable Gillis snatched up the revolver. He walked into the service station and was rushed to a hospital. The bullet, from a .38-calibre revolver, had perforated the bowels in three places and lodged at the base of the spine.

BORN IN P.E.I.

Gillis was born in Montrose, P.E.I., in 1888 and came west as a young man, joining the Winnipeg police force in November, 1912.

During the Great War he served overseas with the Third Division, Canadian Engineers, for four years. At the close of the war he returned to Winnipeg and resumed his place in the police force.

For many years Gillis participated in the annual police sports, winning many trophies for sprinting and all-round athlete ability. In 1920 and 1921 he was a member of the Winning relay teams and for four years he captured the board of police commissioners' trophy for grand aggregate at track meets in 1921, 1922, 1923 and 1925.

Constable Gillis is survived by the widow and two children, George, fifteen, and Eleanor, thirteen.

needs of the United States, with great areas of the world's surface to be covered, made it necessary American battleships be sufficiently large for long cruising radius.

Each delegation, including the British, set forth its views as to all types of ships and sizes of guns, with the British presenting their own original view that battleships could be of 25,000 tons, armed with twelve-inch guns.

The general discussion will be continued Monday.

The French demand for smaller capital ships presented a new crisis in the naval conference.

SHIPS FREED FROM ICE IN ORIENT

Associated Press

Tientsin, China, Feb. 7.—Japanese ice-breakers, ploughing through drifting ice floes, tonight broke the grip of ice on a score of vessels trapped in the frozen Gulf of Pechili.

Simultaneously, a rise in temperature removed grave fears for the safety of the hundreds of passengers caught aboard other vessels.

He was suspended by Mayor Leeming when notification was given the mayor of the shortage. The suspension was made absolute by the council at the next meeting.

AUDITORS' REPORT

Then followed a complete port from the auditors on the situation, in which they explained how the road and poll tax account had run short over the last three years. Because of the carryover annually on this account, the auditors explained, discovery of the shortage was not made in their annual check-ups, the missing amounts being listed as outstanding accounts. The receiving and filing of the auditors' statement exonerated them from responsibility in the matter.

It was at this meeting also that the recommendations of the finance committee for staff reorganization were introduced. There will be a move at the next meeting to have these recommendations reconsidered, it is understood.

The recommendations of the finance committee, which were adopted and are now in the process of being put into effect were:

INTERNAL AUDITOR

"Appointment of Cyril Norman, assistant comptroller, as internal auditor to check all books of collectors and sub-colectors, and to check collections under the Soldiers' Housing account, and to report regularly to the City Comptroller.

"Appointment of J. A. Harrison, assitant treasurer, as assistant comptroler and treasurer at a salary of $165 a month, to check receipts daily.

"Appointment of T. G. Harris as road and poll tax collector, to succeed Mr. Lord, at a salary of $112 a month, with $15 a month car allowance, and 10 per cent on all collections over $16,500 a year." (The salary figures are liable to alteration in consideration of this year's estimates).

The council also supported a suggestion that applications be taken from the City Hall staff for the positions formerly occupied by Mr. Harrison and Mr. Norman, these to be referred to the finance committee for report and recommendations.

The purchase of a factory-built bookkeeping machine for use in the treasury department was also approved. The machine will cost approximately $2,000, but was reported to be a splendid device for defence of cash. Purchase of this was left in the hands of the Mayor and city comptroller.

PARTIAL RESTITUTION

In the meantime efforts toward restitution of the missing funds have been made. Certain local interests through Alderman A. McGavin, have contributed $2,000 towards the deficit. The collector's superannuation fund of $540, was signed over, and also slightly more than $100, which was due in salary.

No official statement has been forthcoming on the other reported shortage, which it is learned, dates back several years. No one now connected with the city is reported responsible for it.

BOY DIES AS RESULT OF CRASH

Associated Press

Port Angeles, Feb. 7.—Fourteen-year-old Stephen Gibson, for whose life specialists had fought the last ten days since he was injured in an automobile-bicycle collision, died at 9 o'clock this morning.

He had grown steadily weaker for several days despite blood transfusions, suffering from a skull fracture, broken shoulder and other injuries. Dr. Howard Naffziger of San Francisco and three Seattle specialists made "mercy flights" to his aid.

He was the stepson of Col. Gordon R. Young, commander of the 29th Engineers, and Mrs. Young. They lost another son several years ago through a brain illness.

COLD WAVE RUNS FAR SOUTH

hope of opening county highways until it thaws.

GREAT DROPS

Temperature drops of five to forty degrees were forecast in the new storm's path.

Grand Forks, N.D., reported thirty-eight below. Thermometers at Brookings, S.D., showed twenty-three below, a figure that broke all records for continued cold. Huron, S.D., has had twenty-six days of subzero weather.

The zero line at 7 a.m. central standard time extended from the Canadian border south to the Kansas-Nebraska border and eastward over most of lower Michigan.

Snow fell in many states beginning yesterday evening. A low pressure area over Colorado caused flurries from the Dakotas to Illinois, and another low spot off the North Carolina coast whitened the east to New York.

In the south, more rain and some snow heightened fears of recurrence of floods.

Abnormally cold weather continued over most of the United States for the sixteenth day, and coal shortages grew serious enough to warrant a vote by the United Mine Workers to permit soft coal miners to work on their usual Saturday holiday tomorrow.

FLOOD DANGERS

Threats of a new flood menace in the south were reported continuation of subzero temperatures in the corn belt states.

The most dangerous flood conditions were reported in southwest Alabama, but rivers in Georgia, Mississippi, Tennessee and the Carolinas also neared overflow states. Threats of ice storms added to floor fears at many points, as hundreds were driven from their homes in near-freezing temperatures. Ten deaths were counted in the southern states this week.

SCHOOLS CLOSED

In Washington and Idaho many schools were dismissed as roads were blocked by drifts ten feet high in places.

The doubtful honor of the coldest spot on the continent was accorded to Fort Selkirk, Y.T., with sixty-eight degrees below zero yesterday evening. Pembina, N.D., had thirty-one below, St. Paul twenty-one below, and Chicago fourteen above early today.

Perhaps the strangest of all phenomena due to this morning's cold weather were the great clouds of mist rising from the sea off Victoria. This seldom happens here and caused a great deal of comment. LONDON STRIKE IN FIFTH DAY

Meat Handlers Deny Reports They Are About to Return to Work

London, Feb. 7—London's meat-packing strike entered its fifth day today with the workers unshaken in their determination to cripple London's meat supply until they are granted better wages and hours.

A manifesto issued by the strike committee flatly denied reports the workers were about to return to their jobs. The manifesto also sharply criticized emergency use of trucks, habitually employed for carrying materials other than food, to transport meat during the strike, claiming such action was unsanitary and illegal. The manifesto announced a protest would be made to parliament.

Temperature Lower In Nearby Districts

fore taking another heavy drop after sundown.

Not since January 7, 1909, had the temperature in Victoria fallen so low. On that date, according to records at Gonzales, the thermometer dropped to seven degrees. December 20, 1879, it dropped to zero, but it has not been as cold as that since February 23, when it went to eleven degrees and December 16, 1924, it fell to twelve degrees.

But Victoria and Vancouver Island were not alone. Every part of British Columbia shivered in earnest as wintry blasts whipped down from the north, bringing the lowest temperatures of the year, many of them within a few degrees of equalling record lows of previous years, and threatening to slide even further.

Fuel companies did a rushing business on the lower mainland as householders sought to overcome the chilling effects of eight above zero weather, the lowest since January 18, 1935, when the mercury touched the four above mark.

SUB-ZERO IN INTERIOR

While the lower part of the province was more or less snowless, other points in the interior and north were gripped in sub-zero temperatures, accompanied by fresh gales of forty-mile-an-hour velocity that piled up huge snowdrifts, blocking country roads.

From Vancouver's eight above, the thermometer ranged down to twenty-two below at Kamloops and still lower at northern interior points.

The icy blasts followed in the wake of Wednesday night's windstorm, which struck Vancouver and caused damage unofficially estimated at around $30,000, of which a wrecked seaplane contributed more than $20,000.

One low record was broken when the mercury dropped to two above at Prince Rupert during the night, the coldest temperature registered there in twenty years.

Today the cold had moderated, to be succeeded by a heavy snowfall that was reported general along the coast in that district.

Vancouver's reading was the lowest February temperature ever recorded. The previous low was ten above in 1923, and the all-time low was 2.3 above in January, 1907.

Street car service was delayed in Vancouver city when the cold snapped a trolley wire at Main Street and Eighteenth Avenue.

FREEZING NIGHT IN STALLED CAR

Kamloops, Feb. 7.—Four persons who had spent nearly twenty-four hours in the open in sub-zero weather when their automobiles were stalled by snowdrifts ten feet deep were rescued yesterday evening by British Columbia police after news of their plight had been brought here by a man who walked through the snow for eight hours to reach the city.

Mrs. Dorothy Williams, Donald McLean and A. Middleton, all of Kamloops, and Miss Mabel Crowley of Spence's Bridge, B.C., were marooned on the highway six miles west of here when they were caught in a forty-mile-an-hour blizzard.

J. Maurice Smith, also a member of the party, tramped to Kamloops to seek help. His face was frost-bitten.

FOUR CONVICTS MAKE ESCAPE

Guard Knocked Unconscious As Men Break Out of Kentucky Reformatory

Associated Press

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 7.—Four armed convicts walked to freedom from the main entrance of the Frankfort State Reformatory early today after overpowering two guards and looting the prison arsenal.

The gang, three of them life termers, hijacked a taxicab at the gate and made their getaway before the break was discovered by prison officials.

Using knives to intimidate two attendants in the hospital ward, the four handcuffed Luther Dunn, night captain of guards, to an X-ray machine.

With their leader disguised in Dunn's coat and cap, they were admitted to the outer gate by Robert Wells, a guard, who was then slugged into unconsciousness.

James Morris, twenty-seven, Anchorage, Ky., life-term bank robber, who led an escape of five convicts last May, is one of the four who escaped, and is believed to be the leader.

The others are Dexter Anderson, twenty-three, and Henry Coomer, twenty-two, both life-term murderers, and Clarence Crawford, twenty-six, whose sentences for forgery and for escape last August totaled thirteen years.

longer and a different shade of blue compared with those of Miss Taylor's sweater, Dr. I. H. Erb, pathologist, testified in cross-examination today.

Defence Counsel Frank Regan brought up the question of the bonnet after Dr. Erb had told in direct and cross-examination that more than 200 tiny blue hairs found on O'Donnell's clothing showed a "striking similarity" and no structural difference compared with the material of the sweater.

APARTMENT SEARCHED

O'Donnell's apartment was searched by police when he was first held following death of Miss Taylor, twenty-year-old stenographer, in an east end ravine late at night November 4. O'Donnell was charged with murder two days later.

His wife was in a maternity hospital, and the baby's bonnet found in the O'Donnell apartment was pink with a blue tassel.

Dr. Erb said the tassel was of blue rabbit hair "of a sort," but testified he could distinguish between these hairs and others.

Mussolini Is Told By Ambassador Of Opinion in Britain

League officials said the committee of governmental authorities, in session since Monday, seemingly had reached a conclusion that the warring Fascist nation could not obtain sufficient substitutes to combat an oil sanction sucessfully.

GASOLINE NEEDS

Experst found only about 15 per cent of Italy's oil requirements could be substituted, officials said. This substitution would refer especially to gasoline.

Normally League officials estimated, Italy consumes about 1,500,000 tons of oil a year, but they said that figure had mounted now to 2,500,000 tons.

Other figures being studied by the committee of experts, the officials said, showed that an oil sanction against Italy would prove decisive within a half-year—if it were applied by all oil-producing nations of the world.

Addis Ababa, Feb. 7.—The Ethiopian government announced to-day that Magalo, important southern trade centre, was bombed for the first time since the war started in October.

Officials said the bombing was concentrated against a building which once housed the former Italian trade agency at Magalo, and expressed belief the Italians were aiming at destruction of documents.

NO DUM-DUM BULLETS

Canadian Press from Havas

Geneva, Feb. 7.—Great Britain was on record to-day with a formal denial of Itay's charges that British armament concerns had sold dum-dum bullets to Ethiopia.

Replying to charge that dum-dum bullets had been supplied Ethiopia by Ely Brothers, a note to the League of Nations sanctions committee said that firm was a subsidiary of the Imperial Chemical Industries Limited and that the type of label which Italians claimed they found on dum dum bullets in an abandoned Ethiopian position had not been used by Ely Brothers since 1914.

The British note said Vickers-Armstrong had sold seven machine guns to Ethipoia in 1933, but no munitions were furnished with the weapons. The note insisted that Vickers-Armstrong never furnished dum-dum bullets.

GUERILLA WARFARE

Addis Ababa, Feb. 7 (Canadian Press from Havas).—Ethiopian forces in the northern war zone are carrying on guerilla warfare in an effort to break down the Italian morale and pave the way for an onslaught on Makale and Aduwa, it was reported here today.

Ethiopian sharpshooters, concealed in the rocks and brush in territory near the Italian positions day and night harass the enemy with sniping fire, inflicting a large number of casualties, it was asserted.

The Ethiopians, reported to have completely encircled Makale and to be threatening the communication lines north of the town, now greatly outnumber the Italians, it was said.

SOVIET TALK ECHOES HEARD

F. W. Turnbull, Ex-M.P., Says Regina Trekker Made Remarks

Canadian Press

Regina, Feb. 7.—Hearsay evidence from Frank W. Turnbull, K.C., former Conservative member of Parliament for Regina and confidante of former Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, that the On-to-Ottawa trek of relief camp strikers last summer had as its real aim "the establishment of a Soviet government in Canada" revived flagging interests in the riot inquiry here today.

Mr. Turnbull said he had got his information on this version of the real aims of the trek from a twenty-three-year-old trekker named Charles Harrison, who had said he was wounded in the hip and shoulder in the riot. The conversation took place at Mr. Turnbull's home.

Mr. Turnbull said Harrison was brought to his house by a young Regina man, whose mother sent the two to tell Harrison's story to the Regina member of Parliament.

TO BE CALLED

Chief Justice J. T. Brown, chairman of the inquiry, said the persons who sent the trekker to Mr. Turnbull should come and testify at the inquiry.

COAL MINES IN U.S. SPEED UP

No Holiday To-morrow For Workers as Cold Wave Continues

Associated Press

Washington, Feb. 7.—The United Mine Workers voted today to allow all soft coal miners to work tomorrow to take care of any coal shortage.

John L. Lewis, union president, said the operators should respond to this concession by the miners "by seeing that coal reaches the people who need it most."

The present union agreement calls for a thirty-five-hour work week. Most of the mines in the United States ordinarily do not operate Saturday and Sunday.

"It has been very difficult to make proper investigation as to the need of granting numerous requests to operate six days a week," Lewis said. "But it is apparent the entire country is suffering from inclement weather that would justify some action."

Lewis urged public authorities to see none of the coal mined tomorrow was diverted to industrial use.

Jail Sentence For Gaming House Man

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Feb. 7.—Magistrate H. S. Wood refused to impose a fine on Lim Kee, convicted of keeping a gaming house, and sentenced him to four months in jail when he appeared in police court today.

Profits in the operation of these Chinese gaming houses appear to be so large that the promoters, behind the scenes, seem to be prepared to pay fines to any amount," the magistrate said.

"Fines in cases of this kind would seem to be just a license to operate."

Counsel for Lim Kee had asked that a fine be imposed instead of a prison sentence as the man was only an employee of an organization.

Relief Board Plan Supported

Canadian Chamber of Commerce Approves Federal Step

Canadian Press

Toronto, Feb. 7.—The federal government should act immediately to lift control of relief administration and financing directly "out of the field of local political influence," the Canadian Chamber of Commerce declared in a lengthy statement of policy at the close of its tenth annual convention here yesterday.

Establishment as soon as possible of the projected national advisory relief commission was asked by the chamber so the basis of federal relief assistance for the next fiscal year would be defined. The chamber believed the commission should be entrusted with immediate responsibility of laying down policies and standards of relief administration equitably adjusted for various parts of the country.

NEW PRESIDENT

Hon. R. C. Matthews of Toronto, a former Minister of National Revenue, was chosen as the chamber's new president. He succeeds A. O. Dawson of Montreal.

J. Y. McCarter of Vancouver was elected vice - president. National councillors include S. G. Glaylock, Trail, B.C.

Terrorists On Trial in France

Aix-en-Provence, France, Feb. 7.—Gen. Alphonse J. Georges, famous French colonial soldier, who narrowly escaped death when King Alexander of Jugoslavia and Louis Barthou, French Foreign Minister, were assassinated at Marseilles, gave a vivid account of the killings today at the trial of three Croat terrorists charged with complicity in the crime.

Gen. Georges said he had just heard the king remark how happy he was to be in France and had turned his head an instant when there were several deafening detohations. He said he looked back in time to see the king, his eyes closed, fall on the cushions in their automobile while M. Barthou appeared to be suffering great pain.

Gen. Georges said he hurled himself at the assassin, but was shot several times in the chest and thigh and lost consciousness.

The defendants are Mio Kralj, Zvonimir Posphishil and Ivan Rajitch, all members of the Ustashi, a Croat terrorist secret society.

EINSTEIN WORKS ON NEW THEORY

Famous Scientist Hopes to Correct Defects in His Field Equation; Canadian Professor Helps

Associated Press

New York, Feb. 7.—Professor Albert Einstein is at work on a new theory of matter, which he expects will eliminate defects found in his field equation, the expression of the unifying principle that was expected to tie together in comparable form all physical phenomena.

The criticism which caused Professor Einstein to discard parts of his theory as defective is published by Dr. Ludwik Silberstein of the University of Toronto in the current issue of The Physical Review. A copy of the criticism was submitted to Dr. Einstein before it was offered for publication, and the objections were accepted by him as valid.

The nature of the new Einstein theory of matter has not been revealed, but the professor has informed fellow scientists that he finds the early results of his work at the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton, N.J., satisfactory.

OIL MONOPOLY CAUSES LOSSES

Manchukuo Asked to Pay Compensation to British, Commons Is Told

Canadian Press from Havas

London, Feb. 7.—British oil interests are seeking compensation from Manchukuo for losses suffered as a result of the oil monopoly established in that country, it was revealed in the House of Commons yesterday.

Questioned concerning the amount of compensation sought, Viscount Cranborne, Parliamentary Under-secretary for Foreign Affairs, said discussions were in progress and no concrete results had yet been recorded.

British and United States oil interests charge their business suffered when Manchukuan authorities, under Japanese pressure, established an oil monopoly required foreign companies to trade only through local intermediaries and under strict regulation.

SCIENCE KEY TO DEMOCRACY

American Institute Looks Over Field in Which Newspapers Keep Public Informed of Scientific Developments

Associated Press

New York, Feb. 7.—Adoption of scientific methods which the public must learn through newspapers, was suggested as the key to survival of Democracy in a symposium of well-known scientists, educators, industrial executives and medical men reported yesterday to the American Institute by Howard W. Blakeslee, Associated Press science editor.

The American Institute, one of the oldest scientific organizations in the United States, yesterday evening awarded its gold medal to Dr. John C. Merriman, president of the Carnegie Institution, Washington, and fellowships to Dr. Harrison E. Howe, editor of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, and Mr. Blakeslee.

This was the first award of fellowships by the institute. The medal to Dr. Merriman was "for his discoveries in paleontology, his effective promotion of research and his recognition of science in man's affairs.

To Dr. Howe the fellowship was given "for service to science and industry by interchange of research results among investigators throughout the world and by creating a better understanding of the functions of research and its place in the advancement of civilization."

NEWS FOR PUBLIC

To Mr. Blakeslee the fellowship was awarded "for his contribution to man's fuller understanding of the world in which he lives by accurate presentation of the news of science in the language of the layman and for his service in the development of science through fostering the public's interest in its advancement

HEAVIEST STAR IS DISCOVERED

Canadian Press

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 7.—Harvard College Observatory announced yesterday evening the discovery of the heaviest star known to astronomy.

Dr. Sergei I. Gaposchkin, who made the discovery, found the star to be 40,000,000 times heavier than the earth and seventy times heavier than the sun.

He found, too, that it was an eclipsing star, composed of two celestial giants, which, as they revolve about each other, hide each other from the earth.

So enormous is the larger of the pair that it has a radius of 10,000,000 miles, twenty-three times the radius of the sun.

The smaller star is, comparatively, of only slightly smaller proportion. Its radius is 7,000,000 miles and its mass thirty times that of the sun.

Known to astronomy as "29 Canis Majoris" (Constellation of the Great Dog), the star is easily visible to the eye in the southern sky under Sirius and near the constellation Orion.

One of the hottest of known stars, its light, traveling at a speed of 186,324 miles a second, takes 20,000 years to reach the earth.

RIEL'S CAPTOR IS CALLED BY DEATH

Canadian Press

Saskatoon, Feb. 7.—William Diehl, eighty-five, one of the three members of Irvine's scouts who captured Louis Riel after the Battle of Batoche in May, 1885, died Wednesday on his farm near Marcelin, Sask., leaving a widow and ten children.

Diehl and his companions came on a group of five men following the battle and when the men surrendered to the scouts it was found one of them was Riel, the leader of the Saskatchewan rebellion, who, later was hanged.

Debt Is Declared Biggest Problem

R. P. Jellett Addresses Canadian Chamber of Commerce on Canada's Burden

Canadian Press

Toronto, Feb. 7.—Present burden of governmental debt throughout Canada "constitutes a problem, the remedies for which must be so severe that I cannot help wondering if a democracy such as ours can produce a government with sufficient courage to face it," R. P. Jellett of Montreal told the Canadian Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

Mr. Jellett was one of several speakers who addressed the organization's tenth annual convention on public finance. Others were Sir Henry L. Drayton of Toronto, former Minister of Finance of Canada; F. J. C. Cox, president of the Winnipeg Board of Trade, and J. Courtland Elliott, Toronto economist.

In five years the Dominion debt had increased by $800,000,000, said Mr. Jellett. Unless the government tackled the railway and relief problems and the question of advances to provinces, and instituted drastic administrative economies, he feared the next five years would see a debt increase of $1,000,000,000.

Failure to balance the budget, said Mr. Jellett, would result in the country being faced with proposals for compulsory conversion and inflation. He thought neither would be effective.

NEW LOANS

Refunding efforts of the federal government met with success, said Sir Henry Drayton, but all the resulting economies had been more than lost by the issuance of new loans. He believed the credit of the Dominion was good, but large payments to provinces "which were certainly not anticipated under the B.N.A. Act, ought to stop unless proper federal fiscal control is effected." Proposed creation of a federal loan council appealed to Sir Henry as a step in the right direction.

SEES ERRORS IN SETTLEMENT

J. M. Imrie Says One Prairie Province Would Have Sufficed at First

Canadian Press

Toronto, Feb. 7.—Four major factors had retarded economic recovery on the prairies, John M. Imrie, managing director of The Edmonton Journal, said in an address yesterday at a joint luncheon of the Empire Club of Toronto and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, in annual convention here. He called them "mistakes" by the west itself and by the country as a whole.

First and fundamental was the mistake of "haphazard settlement," the scattering of 290,000 farm homes over the long stretch from southeastern Manitoba to the Peace River area—a distance of 1,200 miles. Tens of thousands of farmers, Mr. Imrie said, had been permitted to homestead on sub-marginal lands where failure, or at best precarious living, was inevitable.

ONE PROVINCE

"With the hindsight that is usually clearer than foresight, it is apparent now that under ordinary settlement, with outer areas opened up only as those closer in were settled, one prairie province would have sufficed and enormous expenditures on public buildings, roads, government, education and other public services would have been avoided," he said.

Other major mistakes were over-emphasis on wheat production, an unwarranted increase in public and private debt and the withholding of wheat from the market in 1928 in expectation of higher prices and the associated establishment of direct selling agencies in Great Britain and elsewhere.

One corrective measure "must surely be a thorough and searching inquiry into the whole problem of settlement on sub-marginal lands," said the Alberta publisher.

PARLIAMENT OPENS

SOME IMPORTANT LEGISLATION WAS forecast in the Speech from the Throne delivered by the new Governor-General at the opening of Parliament yesterday afternoon. Most of this will implement pledges made to the electorate by Mr. Mackenzie King during the recent election campaign and policies advocated by him and his supporters when they were in opposition in the last Parliament.

Notable among the measures under this head which will be introduced will be one for the transfer of the predominant ownership and effective control of the Bank of Canada to the government, making currency and credit a distinctively practical public matter.

As the outcome of the conference between the Dominion and provinces, Parliament will be asked to authorize an amendment to the B.N.A. Act to provide for certain financial arrangements between the federal and provincial governments. Whether the broader subject of securing for the Canadian Parliament power to amend the Canadian constitution under certain conditions will be dealt with this session, or not, remains to be seen. The conference committee still has this subject under consideration.

Another bill will amend the existing legislation affecting the Canadian National Railways, to afford, in the terms of the Speech, "a greater measure of government authority and responsibility to Parliament." The national railroad is now administered by a board of three trustees, a system which was established by the late government following the recommendation of the Duff Commission. Whether it is now proposed to abolish this board, or not, will not be known publicly until the legislation has been introduced, but whatever will be done will be designed to restore the measure of public control of the country's greatest public utility, which Parliament formerly had.

It also is proposed to obtain parliamentary authority for the establishment of a national commission on unemployment to operate in co-operation with the provinces and municipalities. This commission will be assisted by an advisory committee, and will endeavor to consolidate all the governmental and industrial activities of the Dominion with a view to providing work for the unemployed. As leader of the opposition in Parliament, Mr. King constantly pressed for the establishment of such a body, but unfortunately the late government could see nothing in the way of a solution of Canada's greatest problem but the erection of a high tariff wall—which the grim sequel showed increased unemployment on a vast scale. Much valuable time has been lost, but there is every prospect that this formidable problem now will be tackled effectively in the interests of the general public rather than in the interests of an infinitesimal fraction of it.

Parliamentary control over public expenditures will be restored. This disappeared under the blank-cheque legislation rammed through the House of Commons by a majority subservient to Mr. Bennett. There will thus be an early end to the condition in which the Prime Minister was the arbiter of public expenditures and which reached such a point that millions of dollars of the public funds were expended, and millions in terms of public credit were guaranteed to private corporations, without the primary sanction of Parliament. In some cases it was many months before the members of the House of Commons heard of these expenditures or guarantees of the public funds or credit.

The blank cheque era has now come to an end, and Parliament will be the arbiter of public financial policy, as it should be. We also have reached the end of tariff-policy making and direction by order-in-council which became so capricious and discontinuous that importers and customs collectors throughout the country scarcely knew from one week to another just what this form of taxation was going to be. Nor, for that matter, did the majority of Mr. Bennett's ministers who, in many respects, were hardly more than office boys. In the place of this chaotic instability and uncertainty there is going to be stability through policies fully discussed and determined by Parliament.

There is to be a reorganization and consolidation of government services in which there is now considerable wasted activity and expense owing to duplication. The number of cabinet ministers has been reduced from twenty-one to sixteen. This reorganization of departmental services is long overdue and now is the time to put it into effect. Among the changes to be made will be the consolidation of all of the transportation services in the department administered by Mr. C. D. Howe. Instead of separate departments of Marine and Railways and Canals the two will be incorporated in one. Even with this consolidation there is bound to be some duplication, especially in engineering services, but the proposed changes will be a big improvement in the direction of a more simplified administration of the government departments.

Other announcements in the Speech have to do with the government's intention to create permament House under-secretaries to relieve Ministers of some of the pressure of their parliamentary duties. This system exists in Great Britain and has been found highly satisfactory. The under-secretaries will be elected members chosen for their ability, knowledge of public questions and parliamentary experience.

It is proposed to appoint commissions to investigate the importation and distribution of anthracite coal with a view to ascertaining whether the consumers of Canada are being exploited in regard to this commodity, or not. There also will be a thorough investigation of radio broadcasting by a special committee of the House. It is to be hoped the committee will inquire into the pre-election broadcast known as "Mr. Sage," so that the responsibility for that atrocious performance may be placed where it properly belongs.

The trade agreements, notably those between Canada and the United States, and Canada and Japan, will be submitted for the approval of Parliament, and it will be interesting to note the reaction of the few apostles of high-tariff protection who were returned in the recent election. Mr. Bennett had been negotiating for the agreement with the United States for several years before he went out of office. We will now have his afterthoughts. He will attack the agreement with Japan because his pampered proteges, the textile interests—who are about to be investigated—are bitterly opposed to it. On the whole there is enough on the sessional programme to keep Parliament busy until midsummer.

HEALTHY KAMLOOPS

KAMLOOPS HAS BEEN DESCRIBED AS the healthiest city in Canada by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. It has won the trophy presented by that body and has every right to stick out its community chest. Here is the official communication:

> Kamloops has achieved the highest honor for its state of health at the hands of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, Montreal. The following letter addressed to D. B. Johnstone, secretary of the Board of Trade, explains:
> I have much pleasure in announcing that Kamloops has moved up from third place last year to first place this year in the chamber's health and safety contest. The judges today have announced that the Kamloops Board of Trade is the winner of the health trophy in population category number three. I extend my sincerest congratulations.
> We are hopeful that one of your members will be able to be present at the chamber's annual convention in Toronto, so that the trophy may be presented formally on the floor of the conference.

The city of Kamloops is to be congratulated on its excellent achievement. It speaks well for the work which has been put in by all those who have labored in the cause of public health.

Kamloops, of course, is known throughout the world for its climate, its health-giving properties, especially to those who are troubled with pulmonary diseases. Many from eastern Canada, the continent of Europe, the neighboring republic, and the Orient, have gone to Kamloops with their death-checks in their pockets.

More than 90 per cent of these doomed ones are still hale and hearty. It is the Kamloops climate—a little more than eleven hundred feet above sea-level—the dry summer days, the dry winter days, and no humidity—that does it!

INJURY TO ANIMALS

THE LOCAL BRANCH OF THE SOCIETY for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals intends to ask for an amendment to the Motor Vehicles Act which would compel drivers of automobiles to report the injury or death of an animal occurring while driving the vehicle.

The majority of motorists, of course, have sufficient of the humanitarian instinct to look after any animal that might accidentally be run down by them. But there always will remain a few who have not the decency to do the right thing. We take it that the local branch of the S.P.C.A. has sufficient evidence upon which to base its desire to make it compulsory to report the death or injury of any animal. There is no reason why its request should not be granted.

A SAGE TIP FOR DRIVERS

THAT ROADS IN THE UNITED STATES are being burned up these days by too many ninety-horsepower cars driven by thirty-horsepower points of view is the analysis of Alfred P. Sloan Jr., automotive executive, and Mr. Sloan ought to know. He says driving at sixty miles an hour is just as different from driving at twenty as bicycling is from horseback riding; and you just can not express the complications introduced by saying merely that you are going three times as fast.

"I wish," said Mr. Sloan, "we could alter the scale to designate speeds. Instead of saying, 'We are driving fifty miles an hour,' we should say, 'We are driving at 166 feet stopping distance.' Then it might be more apparent that if you could see only 100 feet around the turn, you would slow down to, say, thirty-five miles an hour and leave yourself a braking margin."

Mr. Sloan adds the sound suggestion that drivers' examinations be required everywhere. Then no one could drive who did not know what's what about his car's performance.

Vancouver, Canada's third largest city, is quite reasonably rejoicing over the fact that building permits there showed an increase of 600 per cent in two years. This is good for industry generally and a good omen for 1936.

Hon. George M. Weir's reminder that the health insurance bill contemplated by the provincial government has not been completed is very much to the point. While public discussions of the principle of health insurance are always in order, the abandon with which this particular measure—whose provisions have not yet been decided upon—has been criticized in some quarters must have been rather interesting to the government itself. Dr. Weir, who is responsible for whatever measure will be introduced in the Legislature, no doubt is highly intrigued by the criticism of those who have not seen it or have not the slightest idea what it will contain.

What Other Papers Say

IMMIGRATION OR WAR?

The Regina Leader-Post

It will be interesting to see if the new government at Ottawa, when it has placed the national house in order and a groundwork for better conditions has been firmly laid, will give consideration to greater immigration. It has to be kept in mind that our population density is among the lowest in the world. Perhaps our first problem, however, is to seek to create better conditions for our population as it stands.

OUR "PRETORIAN GUARD"

Le Devoir, Montreal

As a matter of fact our provincial police force, in which there are very good people taken individually, has become during the last few years a sort of pretorian guard, or a corps of janissaries, of which one of the principal functions is to protect the party in power. It is chiefly used for annoying its adversaries or those whom it believes to be such. Paid out of the public funds—and therefore out of taxes taken from the citizens—this police force serves also, in times of provincial elections, to cover up the manoeuvres and the dirty work of those who dominate it by their position... No individual who manifests in however small a degree independence of spirit where the party in power is concerned is safe against that police; and those who openly attack such and such a member of the party run the risk of having a secret dossier at Quebec and of being shadowed by the police.

Loose Ends

An apology for a great wrong done to a social phenomenon —And a confession of sin

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

APOLOGY

THE APOLOGIES of this column are due to the music lovers and serious students of this community for my recent frivolous remarks about a great modern masterpiece. I refer, of course, to "The Music Goes 'Round and Around." I had thought this was just another jazz tune. In my ignorance, I had mistaken it for an unimportant matter and I was rather flippant and vulgar about it. It is only in the last few days that I have realized what I was doing.

If you read any of the serious magazines and reviews of America, you will see that "The Music Goes 'Round and Around" is not a jazz tune—it is an event, a portent and a great step in civilization. For example, The New Republic, which devotes itself entirely to politics, books, art and the drama, and is by way of being the most intelligent review of events on this continent, publishes a long analytical article on "The Music Goes 'Round and Around"—a longer article than it devoted in that issue to the United States government or the Ethiopian War.

"The Music Goes 'Round and Around," which I had thought was rather gay and delightful to dance to, under the proper circumstances and in suitable company, turns out to be a grave historical phenomenon, like Dr. Compton's cosmic rays, unemployment and the Hartman pain killer. You mustn't dismiss it with a shrug or a whistle. You must look into this thing and perceive its social consequences.

OVER MY HEAD

I MAY CONFESS at the outset that the things is beyond me. I have read The New Republic and many other articles in the serious American magazines and I can't make it out. Oh, I can hum the tune all right, but you might as well say you understand finance because you have two-bits. I can't make out the historic importance of the thing and why it should be more significant than unemployment and the Ethiopian War. Apparently it has something to do with "swing."

Now, I can't tell you what "swing" is, but it is something in jazz music that the real musician feels in his soul. It is the thing that makes jazz orchestra leaders rock with emotion on their feet and gives crooners intimations of immortality and causes my friend, Bill Tickle, at the hotel, to glow with a holy light.

This thing called "swing" has become the centre of a religious cult which is world-wide. Perhaps you didn't know it, but they have clubs and organizations of jazz experts in the United States who yammer and drool over the new jazz tunes, hold exhibitions of them, make collections of them, dissect and examine them, as artists and collectors of another sort do with pictures. There is a vast technique and criticism of jazz until it has become one of the recognized arts, and its exponents insist that it is America's first and only contribution to the world's culture. Personally I don't entirely agree with that. I put Mickey Mouse and the Silly Symphonies first, and some of Edison's work may live, too, for a little while.

If you think this jazz mania is typical of American character, imported from the negro, and turn up your nose at it, you had better understand that it has swept England off its feet, too. Indeed, the American jazz maniacs are alarmed and humiliated because the English are stealing the art from under their noses. The jazz cult of England is stronger than the jazz cult of America now, and more jazz music is sold there than in the United States. This, I know, will harrow the tweed-clad souls of many fine gentlemen in these parts and in the Cowichan Valley, but we must face the facts of life.

Now the soul of jazz, as I read these treatises, is this thing called "swing." So far as I can make out, "swing" is a mixture of religion and art and science, a philosophy, a kind of way of life. There is no use trying to tell you what it is. You either have it or you haven't, and if you haven't you are just out of luck, as if you were born with one eye and a wart on your nose. You simply are not in harmony with the spirit of the times, you cannot feel the deep undertones running through modern life. But you can't do anything about it. It is born in you like a taste for olives, the consciousness of sin, and a sense of Culbertson. Many people haven't either. I haven't either.

Speaking frankly, I have no "swing" in my soul. I can't feel the deeper undertone of modern life. I can only hear a screeching and bellowing, but I know the swing must be there and I can appreciate those who perceive it. I am not altogether blind to these higher aspects of life. I cannot enter the shrine, but I can acquire a kind of vicarious glow when Bill Tickle's round face lights up with a holy light and the music goes 'round and around and comes out here. I can sense it dimly. But not dimly enough.

FALSE ALARM

TWO VICTORIA boys have been arrested, tried and punished by the courts for sending in false alarms to the fire department. That's what should be done to miscreants who expose firemen and citizens to risk and disorganize the whole fire fighting system simply to gratify an insane whim.

But after making that clear, I feel I must confess to a certain disreputable admiration for these two boys. It is all wrong, and I am deeply ashamed of it, but I have always wanted to turn in a fire alarm. Many times in my youth, and even in my advanced years, I have stood and looked at a fire alarm box with a glassy-eyed fascination. For some time it was all I could do to walk by one of those red boxes. But I always lacked courage. I was a failure. I never turned in an alarm. I am a false alarm myself.

Well, I have just about resigned myself now to going through life without ever turning in a fire alarm. It is a melancholy thought that even in this age of plenty, with alarm boxes and fire equipment enough for all of us, yet most of us will go through our lives without ever turning in a fire alarm. I tell you, it is emotional starvation and some people just can't stand it. They rush out and turn in an alarm and settle their nerves for years afterwards.

It would be a good thing if every man were allowed to turn in a few alarms a month and see the fire department rush out; it would offer an escape from the tenseness of modern life; it would improve the public disposition; it would make life a lot more pleasant for wives, children and stenographers.

But I don't suppose this age of plenty and sanity will ever come in our time. However, if things go to smash completely, if I see civilization about to collapse, as Mr. Eden expects, the last thing I shall do before the fall, before it is too late, before fire departments and alarm boxes have all disappeared into limbo—the last thing I shall do is to rush out and turn in a false alarm. I think a man could face the destruction of civilization after that. I think he could die happy.

C.C.F. CLUBS TO MEET

Edmonton, Feb. 7 (Canadian Press).—A convention of C.C.F. clubs in Alberta will likely be called shortly to form a provincial association which would be affiliated with the national council of that party, it was announced, following a central council meeting here yesterday. The meeting here was attended by representatives of eighteen C.C.F. clubs, who approved of a constitution submitted by a special committee.

Young People See Baking of Bread

An interesting and well attended meeting of the Victoria City Temple Young People's Society was held Tuesday.

Meeting at the City Temple, they proceeded to the plant of the Canadian Bakeries, on their arrival they were met by the foreman of the plant, Mr. D. Gay, who kindly conducted them and explained the making and baking of bread.

On behalf of the Young People's Society, Mr. G. A. A. Hebden extended a vote of thanks to Mr. Gay for his very interesting explanations.

A Valentine party has been arranged for Tuesday, February 11, at 8 o'clock refreshments will be served, an enjoyable evening is anticipated for every one.

Lecture on Crown Jewels—A lecture on "The Crown Jewels of England" will be given by K. C. Symons at the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Friday, February 14, at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Missionary Society of the church. An attractive musical programme has been arranged and tickets may be procured from any member of the society.

PRESS BALL WEEK AWAY

Weeks Rush By and Gala Event of the Season to Be Held Next Friday Night

One week from to-night and the eagerly anticipated Press Club ball will be in full swing.

There is not much time left, but that does not matter now, for most of the plans for entertainment are complete, and the full quota of tickets has been nearly disposed of. The dance programme has been drawn up—and the numbers will be specially dedicated to "people about town." The diamond ring has been placed in its neat little box ready for presentation, the Press Gang is just about ready for the press, and novelties have been ordered.

The ticket sale has even surprised the optimistic members of the Victoria branch of the British Columbia Institute of Journalists. It was known, of course, the press ball would be popular, but the sale of tickets to date has truly been surprising. Reporters of The Times and The Colonist have received requests for them from all quarters of the city. Everything points to a large crowd. That is all the public need supply—the crowd. The ball committee will do the rest.

Fairfield Women's Association—The monthly meeting of the Fairfield W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. E. M. Worth, 1650 Hollywood Crescent, on Thursday afternoon, the president, Mrs. E. Thomson, in the chair, and sixteen members present. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and found to be in a most encouraging financial standing, due to the untiring work of all the members during the past year. A full programme of new work was arranged. Mrs. G. Gordon was appointed convener of the sewing, and Mrs. M. Howard for the knitting. Also it was decided to hold a concert and play at a near date with local talent providing the entertainment. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction, after which refreshments were served by the hostess. A hearty vote of thanks was proposed by Mrs. A. C. Charlton.

HUMOR TYPES ARE COMPARED

Dr. Henrietta Anderson Contrasts English and American Concepts

"Taking it broadly, the English idea of humor consists of taking the rational, the real, and making it behave in an irrational manner; on the other hand, the American idea is to take an irrational creature, such as Mickey Mouse, and make it behave in a rational manner."

Dr. Henrietta Anderson thus summarized the differences between English and American humor in her delightfully entertaining address before the Reading Club of the Y.W.C.A. yesterday afternoon, about a hundred women being present. Mrs. Edwin Tomlin presided.

"Laughter is to be divorced from humor," the speaker said in her preamble, and proceeded to analyze it into three classes: First, the laughter which signifies politeness; second, the laughter which is an expression of nervousness; third, the laughter which arises from real humor.

ENGLISH HUMOR

Comparing English and American characteristics, Dr. Anderson observed that each believes the other devoid of humor, because each has a different conception of it. But while English humor was so often merely implied, subtle, and leaving much to the imagination of the reader, yet it was equally enjoyed by the sophisticated of both countries.

On the other hand, it was claimed that "Punch," while appealing to Englishmen of all classes, was seldom, if ever, enjoyed by Americans, because of its under-statement, its subtlety. Quite distinctive from English humor was Scottish humor, which was unconscious and "pawky," and Cockney humor, which was in a class by itself.

The Englishman's democracy—"and it is the most democratic in the world," the speaker intimated—was reflected in his humor; it was free, clean and thoroughly democratic. American humor was broader, and tended more to exaggeration; to the Englishman the comic strip was "footling" and a waste of time.

"LIFE" AND "PUNCH"

In fact, the difference between "Life" and "Punch" typified the difference between two national ideas of humor, the speaker said.

"The American 'wisecrack' or applesauce goes over the head of the average Englishman who, in the attempt to understand it looks rather pathetic and a trifle wistful," was the speaker's comment.

But the humor of such American writers as Bret Harte, Mark Twain and Stephen Leacock had a universal appeal, she observed.

The speaker also asserted that the Englishman enjoys a joke in the same way as he takes his sport—for the fun of it, but the American takes his humor more seriously, each seeing himself as an Irving Cobb.

As typical but distinctive English humorists, she cited Charles Lamb, Dickens, H. G. Wells, W. S. Gilbert of Gilbert and Sullivan feme, Hilaire Belloc and Lewis Carroll, among the novelists; and Bairnsfather, the creator of the famous war-time caricature, "Ole Bill," deftly pointing out their principal characteristics.

In conclusion, Dr. Anderson read two humorous articles, one by Stephen Leacock and one from "Punch," thus rounding out a most enjoyable afternoon.

IS IMPRISONED IN DARK ROOM

Woman of 33 Rescued From Virginia Mountain Shack By Constable

Associated Press

McKendree, W. Va., Feb. 7.—A shy little woman smiled her thanks for food at the state hospital here, yesterday, but refused to talk about reports she had lived twenty-two of her thirty-three years in the darkened room of a mountain cabin—imprisoned by her mother.

Physicians today described her as immature, saying:

"She could be mistaken for a child."

The woman, Dama Coleman, ate ravenously of food provided after State Trooper O. R. Kincaid had taken her to the hospital.

Kincaid said he had battered down the door of the shack and taken the woman from the home of Mrs. Minnie Coleman, her sixty-two-year-old mother.

The mother, who will be arraigned on a lunacy charge, said she had kept the daughter in her room because of throat trouble.

Cardboard nailed over windows shut out all light.

Governor H. G. Kump ordered an investigation after receiving word from neighbors that they believed the woman was held prisoner. They said they had last seen her when she was ten or eleven, but had heard her voice frequently.

"Mutiny on the Bounty" is all over!

All the crew wanted was a change of food. Bully beef and hard tack got a bit monotonous. Had the skipper been able to trot out a case of Heinz Tomato Ketchup . . . the grumbles would have changed to cheers.

Now and then, the home "skipper" also faces a mild case of mutiny from her 'crew'. But when she brings on the Heinz Tomato Ketchup, everybody cheers up.

Heinz Ketchup is made from big, red, vine-ripened, extra-juicy tomatoes—picked, cooked and bottled all the same day to save the flavour. Heinz Ketchup wakes up appetite like no other condiment in the world, and makes plain meals taste like banquets.

Story of Late King's Sympathy

Canadian Press from Havas

London, Feb. 7.—The keen sympathy of the late King George for Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald after the defeat of the former Prime Minister in the general election was revealed by Baron Blanesburgh yesterday evening.

Speaking at the Royal Caledonian Schools, he said the late King was distressed when Mr. MacDonald found himself without a parliamentary seat following last November's general election. He sent for him and said:

"I think this is all wrong that you, who have been Prime Minister for so long, merely because you have no seat either in the House of Lords or the House of Commons, should not be present at the state opening of Parliament, and accordingly I invite you to attend me and as Lord President to stand behind me when I read my address."

"That was characteristic of King George at his best," said Lord Blanesburgh.

Your Baby and Mine

SHED A TEAR FOR MRS. TILDEN—SHE USED CANDY AS A BRIBE

Beulah faced her mother with a beatific smile. "Am I good, mumsy?"

"You're a very good little girl," mother said approvingly.

Beulah's finger pointed straight to the cupboard on whose highest shelf reposed a big box of candy.

"Then I wanna piece of candy. You said when I was good I could have one."

"So you can, darling, two of them right after dinner."

"I wannit now."

NOW YOU'RE TEASING

"Now, you're being a bad girl. You've teased for half the box already and you'll be sick."

"But I'm not sick," said Beulah, which was an incontrovertible fact.

"Here, let Mamma show you a new way to dress up your dolly. And then we'll have a tea party and you can have a cookie and I'll have one and Dolly can have one."

"I don't want a cookie, I want candy."

WHEN "NO" MEANS "YES"

Mrs. Tilden's voice had a sharp edge. "Don't make mother angry. When I say 'No', I mean 'No'. Run and play now and don't tease. Candy spoils your appetite. I told you you could have one right after dinner, but if you keep on teasing I won't give you any at all."

At this hard-hearted dictum, Beulah used her final tactics. She threw herself on the floor and burst into toneless wails, kicking her feet hard and filling the air with noise.

SHAMING DOESN'T WORK

"Oh, for heaven's sake. Take a piece. How you act! Just like a big baby. Aren't you ashamed to act that way all for a piece of candy."

No child is ashamed of acting any way which gets results. One piece of candy after each meal, selected from an easily accessible box by a child who considered candy no reward for anything would have saved a lot of emotional wear and tear on both Beulah and Mamma.

Tomorrow: Symptoms of rickets may easily go undetected.

YOUNG ACTRESS AS GREAT QUEEN

Helen Hayes is shown as she appeared in the role of Queen Victoria in the Broadway stage success, "Victoria Regina," in which the critics acclaimed the dignity and beauty of her performance. In Great Britain Queen Victoria may not appear as a character on the stage or in a movie. The ban was reaffirmed in the police court at Bath, Somerset, recently when Mistress Consuelo de Reyes King was fined $50 and $30 costs for presenting a play, "Vickie, the widowhood of a Queen," at a local theatre.

PRESENT PUPILS AT MUSICALE

Mme. Bella Dobree presented several of her pupils in a programme of vocal and piano numbers before an enthusiastic gathering of friends and others in the Y.W.C.A. on Wednesday evening, assisting were Mrs. David B. Keir, mezzo-soprano; Mme. Estelle Toume, elocutionist; the Misses Fallowes, gifted violinist and cellist, in solo and duet numbers; Wm. M. M. Touche, in vocal and violin selections, and Percy Scott's Plectral Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Touche.

Master Dickie Holmes, with but four months tuition, gave a creditable performance on the piano; Master Alexis Sutcliffe delighted his listeners when he played and sang, showing the results of careful training; Pamela Morley, a young piano student with eight months' lessons, played correctly and with ease. All three pupils performed without the aid of their music.

Jay Pogson, who last year captured the first place in the baritone class at the Musical Festival, rendered two groups, outstanding among which were: "Till I Wake" (Finden), and "Harlequin" (Sanderson).

Mme. Dobree, accompanied throughout the programme.

At the close of the programme, a social hour was enoyed, when delicious refreshments were served.

ELECTRICAL FIRM WANTS WOMEN

London, Feb. 7.—British women are broadening their interests and entering new professions. Mrs. Olive Strachey of the Women's Employment Federation, revealed yesterday that in the last year two women became harbor officials, twenty took commercial flying licenses, seven became stockbrokers, twenty-four took charge of farms and 121 became auctioneers.

Noting the statistics, Sir John Brooke, vice-chairman of the British Electricity Commission, declared there was a great opening for educated women in the electrical industry. Five large companies, he said, were prepared to engage more women.

Lake Hill Institute Names Committees

The monthly meeting of the Lake Hill Women's Institute was held in the Institute room last Tuesday with fourteen members and two visitors. The president, Mrs. Findlay, was in the chair. A good deal of routine business was gone through together with a number of letters and other correspondence. The committees for the year were formed, of which the conveners were as follows: Home economics, Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Mercer Sr.; education, better schools and community betterment, Mrs. Webster; legislation, immigration and League of Nations, Mrs. Holyoake; visiting sick, Mrs. Service; institute work and method, Mrs. Findlay; publicity and national events, Mrs. Bowers and Mrs. Findlay; agriculture, Mrs. Myles; industries, Miss Holyoake; refreshments, Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. Lilly; social, Mrs. Lemon. An affiliation to the Local Council of Women was taken out and Mrs. Bowers, Mrs. Findlay, Mrs. Palmer and Mrs. Curry were chosen delegates.

The hostesses for the afternoon tea were Mrs. Findlay and Mrs. Porter. As a change from the regular routine of business, the members will answer the question, "What Does the Institute mean to Me?"

Many Problems Awaiting Redress Women Are Told

Mrs. R. W. McClung Speaks of Rabid Nationalism and Communism Before Presbyterial; Liquor Evil Denounced

The menace of Communism, rabid nationalism, and the liquor traffic were among the many problems calling for the individual and united effort of every member of the church in their combatting, Mrs. R. W. McClung told the Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church yesterday afternoon.

The speaker read excerpts from Stanley Jones's book, "Christ's alternative to Communism" describing how Russia, today, was showing tremendous progress along economic and educational lines, simply because they had a plan. Their methods might be questioned and criticized as wrong and un-Christian, but the fact remained that they had gone far toward the purpose which they had set themselves in life.

The Russians had been able to do certain things, bringing about a happiness and contentment among their people, which the Christian element in other countries had been unable to bring about. Mrs. McClung commented.

The time of a great sifting was at hand and the time was coming when the world would be forced to choose between Communism and a better order based on a higher Christian ethical concept, she warned.

TOLERANCE NEEDED

Tolerance and understanding of other races and creeds must be cultivated and practiced, the speaker continued. Even in the church there were many who were willing to work for people of other races, but would not work with them. Peace would never be brought about in the world as long as some nations considered themselves superior and other nations inferior.

The women of the churches should help to give a lead by studying and informing themselves and working to the end that the Kingdom of God might come about on the earth, she said.

LIQUOR ADVERTISING

Objection to liquor advertising in magazines and newspapers, to the showing of drinking on the films, and to politicians who encourage legislation for the promotion of drinking, was voiced by Mrs. D. Girvin in her address on "Temperance."

She cited steps taken in other provinces against the forces of liquor with its increasing offensive campaign.

Mrs. Girvin urged the women to become active participants in the temperance movement, and to give both moral and financial support to the B.C. Temperance League. The women were also asked to make a close study of the B.C. Liquor Act and to inform themselves on all phases of the liquor traffic.

Mrs. McClung warmly endorsed the sentiments expressed by Mrs. Girvin, warning her hearers of the danger should Victoria add to its liquor

She deplored the fact that the sale of liquor should be used as a means of attracting tourists. Victoria's "quiet dignity and orderly silences" had always been part of its great charm and attraction, and if these characteristics were sacrificed "Victoria would be just another city."

MEMBERSHIP GROWS

At the afternoon session, Mrs. C. A. Fields, corresponding secretary, reported twenty-two auxiliaries with a total membership of 634, an increase of twelve from last year, three evening auxiliaries, with a membership of ninety-five, an increase of seventeen from last year.

Mrs. E. P. Church in her report of the Evening Auxiliaries, Duncan, First United and Metropolitan, told something of the programmes arranged to maintain interest and increase membership, and the systematic giving. Referring to the taking over of a circle by a C.G.I.T. group, she noted "There need be no future anxiety for our missionary work as we see these sincere, enthusiastic and efficient young women stepping into the senior work."

Miss P. Moore, reporting for Mission Bands, also spoke in optimistic vein, recording eighteen bands with 427 members, a total gain of forty-one. A total of $291.17 was sent to the provincial branch. Gifts had been sent by the bands to the supply secretary and to Indian children. The one baby band had thirty babies

Mrs. C. G. Mackenzie reported for Mission Circles; Mrs. E. W. Horton read the C.G.I.T. and costume secretaries' reports in the absence of Mrs. A. J. Daniels.

Mrs. T. H. Johns sang two solos very beautifully.

SUPPER SERVED

In the evening the delegates were entertained at a delicious supper served to about 160, in the Sunday school room. The long tables were most attractively decorated with daffodils and pussy-willows. Mrs. W. J. Graham presided, extending a warm welcome to the representatives of other church organizations who were special guests for the occasion.

Lady Lake brought greetings from the Columbia W.A. of the Church of England in Canada, of which she is president. She spoke briefly of the work of the W.A. which this year celebrated its fiftieth anniversary, with over 90,000 members throughout Canada.

Mrs. Phillips conveyed a message of goodwill from the City Temple Ladies' Auxiliary. Mrs. F. W. McKinnon brought greetings from the Presbyterian W.M.S. and wished the Presbyterial every success in its undertaking.

Mrs. Geo. Guy, first vice-president of the Presbyterial, conducted a round-table conference, in which questions were answered and interesting discussion followed.

Temperance, group work, membership, young groups and allocation, the study book, life memberships, and the Missionary Monthly were all the subject of questions. The difficulty of obtaining officers and department secretaries was another point considered.

COMMUNISM IS CHALLENGE

Church Must Meet It, Rev. E. C. Whitehouse Warns W.M.S.

"To meet the challenge of the Communism which preaches a Godless and social collectivity in a world where men are hungry and ill-clad in a world full of food, Christians can only meet the challenge by recognizing what is true in it and what is false. To meet that challenge the Christian church must be ready to strip itself of what is merely rhetorical, tattered and decadent. We have got to match the enthusiasm of the great Communist movement or beat a retreat before its oncoming power."

This ringing challenge was thrown out by Rev. A. E. C. Whitehouse of Chown United Church, Vancouver, Wednesday evening in his address on "Women in a Changing World," before a large congregation gathered in the First United Church for the opening of the annual meeting of the United W.M.S. Presbyterial.

NOT IN A VACUUM

Reminding his hearers that "we are not functioning in a vacuum, but in a changing world," the speaker replied to those critics who claimed religion was waning, that religion was as essential to life as was bread. But there was a tendency to get away from the church, and the church, if it were to remain an organized institution, must take cognizance of the changes going on today.

Touching upon the failure of political democracy as a panacea for all ills, as it was once thought it would be, Mr. Whitehouse pointed to the dictatorships and anarchy which threaten the world. Although during the last decade the world has been building the machinery of peace, yet the race for armaments was swifter than ever.

Those sections which see the danger must be able to mobilize their constituents and present their case for peace, and it was not a task to be relegated to a few men who have public responsibility, it was a task for every individual, he urged.

While not attempting to analyze the present social structure, the speaker observed that the present order was not "invented nor superimposed by a few demons," it was part of an evolution in which all shared. "The very things which make for differences between man and man are those which cause internal strife and international war," he declared.

ALL TO BLAME

While a large part of the blame for armaments and war could be attributed to "propaganda and lies, yet we must admit that the blame lies largely in our way of doing business, our way of seeking markets in competition with the other nations of the world, and this is the great problem, the great issue of war," he declared.

Mr. Whitehouse touched upon the danger of Communism, not as a political expedient, but as a philosophy of life. Communism to-day was telling us that Christian justice had not worked itself into life, that Christianity had become conventional and rhetorical. And it was well to heed that criticism, he reminded the audience.

"FOREIGN" MISSIONS

After deploring the use of the word "foreign" missions in the vocabulary of the church, Mr. Whitehouse appealed for a wider conception of the world's "one-ness," saying that, if the church could not give leadership to the world, then the church was not Christian.

The spirit of prayer was essential to the undertaking of these tasks, and in the programme of the Women's Missionary Society, Mr. Whitehouse saw the nobility which would inspire all in the church to inform themselves as to how best they could make the impact of their ideals upon the world they serve.

Mrs. C. G. MacKenzie ably moved the vote of thanks to the speaker. The president of the Presbyterial, Mrs. W. J. Graham, welcomed the delegates and expressed the appreciation of the members in having the pleasure and privilege of Mr. Whitehouse's presence at the opening meeting.

Mr. George Peaker played an organ solo. Rev. E. W. Horton, the chairman, gave the special prayer of the evening, and Rev. W. P. Bunt brought greetings from the Presbytery. Two delightful numbers were sung by the First United Church Quartette, "Shepherd of Israel" and "Take Time to Be Holy."

The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

The chief food of the body is, of course, the milk which it gets from its mother. Nursing mothers, therefore, must watch their own diets carefully.

Dr. M. Fishbein

There are some ways in which the mother can improve her baby's diet. Likewise, there are some foods which she must shun to protect the little one.

However, the possibility of influencing the quantity or quality of the mother's milk by manipulating her diet is exceedingly small. For example, though there was little food available, and hardly any variety, during the siege of Paris and during the blocade of the central powers in the World War, suckling babes suffered little, if any, harm.

Some people hold that nursing mothers should avoid salads, cabbages and raw fruit. Actually, there is no evidence to indicate that such foods affect the milk.

Of course, if a mother is sensitive to any particular food, she ought not to eat it, since it is likely to cause skin eruptions, pains, or digestive disturbances.

For herself, a woman needs at least 1,500 to 2,000 calories a day. Since, in addition, she must supply 600 calories for the baby, the nursing mother should eat about one-half again as much food as she ate daily before she began nursing the baby.

Many people believe large quantities of beer, malted milks, or milk will help provide more milk for the baby. Again, evidence tends to disprove this theory.

If a nursing mother drinks a quart of milk each day, in addition to the meals she usually takes, she will get all the food necessary for herself and the baby.

Doctors believe the best flow of milk will result from regular nursing of the baby, which brings about a beneficial nervous stimulation in the body of the mother.

Physicians advise, too, that a very young baby should be fed every four hours; or five or six times every twenty-four hours. After three or five weeks, the baby should be fed five times a day.

Summer Sweethearts

By Mabel McElliott

© 1935, NEA Service, Inc.

Zoe piloted the little car skillfully up the hilly road winding westward in a zig-zag pattern away from Innicock. From the rise you could look back and see the village lying sleepy in the morning haze, and a line of blue beyond that marked Long Island Sound. Church bells rang in one of the steeples three miles beneath them, and somewhere a cow mooed, long and satisfyingly.

Zoe ran the car into the shadow of a pin-oak and shut off the engine. "Nice up here!"

"I love it," Katharine agreed. There were farms on either side of the River Road; unpainted barns and rail fences hemming in fields of clover and sprouting corn. Some day, in the not far distant future, all this would be taken over by a suburban development company. There would be Moorish villas and golf tees where all was rustic simplicity now.

Katharine dreaded these inevitable "improvements." But meantime she could enjoy the peace of the untouched countryside. Below she could see the bleached roof of Michael's stables. The thought of him, moving and working quietly in that peaceful place, brought a little glow of contentment to her heart. He was nice; she did like him. But it would spoil everything if Zoe—and the rest of the world—would think she'd fallen in love with him.

"It's about Gibbs," Zoe was saying, in a small voice, breaking into her reverie.

Katharine had lived through half a dozen more or less intense love affairs, vicariously, with Zoe. She was only six months older than the little creature beside her, with the round blue eyes and flashing white teeth, but Katharine told herself she felt old enough to be Zoe's grandmother, at the very least.

"—I haven't forgotten him," Zoe proceeded. "Mother—and Daddy—everybody thinks I have. But I can't, Kay. I just can't."

She went on, pleating the folds of her handkerchief. "I can't think about anything else." She looked suddenly very solemn, her little girl face taking on lines of intensity.

"Kay, I've got to see him."

"He—he's away," Katharine murmured, inadequately.

"I know it. He's got to come back—or else I'm going to him."

"Oh, you can't do that," Katharine protested. What a mess this was! Poor Mrs. Parker had confided to Bertine Strykhurst only the day before that Zoe had had a whirl on the boat, and in Paris, too, and that the affair with Gibbs Larkin was definitely off. Parents! thought Katharine, suddenly and angrily! Whatever did they know about what went on?

"I think you're being very silly," she said rather coldly.

Zoe began to cry. She cried prettily; she didn't twist or screw her feature up as so many women do. She just sat quietly and let the large, crystal drops gather and fall, touching them every now and then with the folds of the now delicately pleated handkerchief.

Katharine felt a surge of impatience. "Oh, do stop that!" she said crossly. "Gibbs is almost forty and he'll be fat in no time at all. And you know well enough he's had heaps of affairs—with married women, too. No wonder your mother is against him! She has a perfect right to be."

"But I lo-ove him," Zoe protested, blue eyes swimming, red lips pouting. "You just won't understand You're so—so hard about it, Kay. Just wait till your fall . . ."

"It's nothing to do with me," Katharine said. "Why drag me in?"

"You'll know some day," cried Zoe with spirit, mopping her eyes. "Then you'll be sorry you were so unkind."

Katharine melted. "I didn't mean to be, honestly. What can I do to help?"

There conferences usually ended this way. Katharine was the stronger of the two, yet the soft, yielding Zoe could usually bend her to her way of thinking.

"I thought we might get our parents to let us take a trip together," she began.

"But you've only just got back," Katharine said.

"I know, but we could say we wanted to do New England—the anitque shops and so on . . ."

"And slip up to Maine and see Gibbs? Is that it?"

Zoe nodded.

Katharine frowned. "It's much too transparent. Bertine would be sure to see through it. She's much quicker than your mother about things like that."

"She'd never suspect you," said Zoe slyly, "of deceit."

Katharine flushed. It was true. Bertine would think that she would look after Zoe properly. Well, and she would, too!

"No, I can't possibly do it!"

"Oh, Kay, darling, think about it, won't you?" Zoe looked as if she

"I don't really like Gibbs," Katharine began, doubtfully. "Why should I foster this affair? I think it would be the worst thing you could do, to marry him . . ."

"Oh, marry! Zoe opened her eyes.

"Well, isn't that what you're after?"

"He hasn't asked me, but he will," said the younger girl with a note of soft triumph.

"I've simply got to get back," Katharine said suddenly. Of course she loved Zoe as a sister, but this morning there was something peculiarly irritating in Zoe's assumption that she could bend a full-grown man to her will. Maybe Gibbs wanted to marry her and maybe he didn't. Katharine didn't know. But Zoe was sure of her powers. Katharine, from her chilly heights of superiority to feminine wiles, felt annoyed. She was remembering, with lightning clearness, the way Michael had stared at her the other day: so angrily, almost as though he had, for an instant, hated her! Zoe would have known what to do in such a situation.

The little car whirled about, began the down grade. At the lane leading into the riding club Zoe obediently stopped.

"Look, I'll call you up later," she began importantly.

Katharine nodded. Then her heart plunged sickeningly. Something strange happened to her pulse; it was pounding in her throat. She was conscious of a swift surge of rage.

Riding together, heedless of others along the path, came a man and a girl.

Michael—and Sally Moon!

CHAPTER IV

Zoe glanced at the riders—Michael and Sally Moon—and said carelessly, "So she's got her hooks into him!"

Katharine felt the hot color burn her cheeks. She pretended not to hear. Her heart had plunged—now righted itself. She steadied her hand against the door of the car so that Zoe should not see how it was trembling.

EXPECT GOOD FISH SEASON

Fred Swanson of Cowichan Lake Says Fishing to Be Best in Years There

"One of the best fish runs in years is expected this year in the Cowichan Lake," said Fred Swanson, owner of the Cedar Auto Camp at Cowichan Lake, who was in town yesterday. Restocking that has been undertaken during the last few years by the provincial government should assure good fishing this year, Mr. Swanson said.

M. Swanson said that he and other residents of Cowichan Lake were glad to know the Cowichan Lake Road, which has been under construction, would be completed soon.

The visitor expressed himself as being highly in accord with the reduction of fishing licenses for non-residents.

Reports received from the Courtenay River district say that a good run of cutthroat salmon is expected this year. The report says that the river at the present time is in excellent condition and a number of steelheads have been landed.

LAWLESSNESS

To the Editor:—Myrtle Meyer Eldred says in The Times, February 4 that infants, opening eager eyes on a fascinating world, should never be checked in grasping anything they please. That this "training" can be simplified by putting fragile objects out of sight.

This illustrates the way in which these advisers-to-parents create situations wherein infancy never has a chance to learn obedience.

In this manner, they teach lawlessness from the cradle.

WHEN YOU FIND YOU HAVE OVER-INDULGED

Wise people don't deliberately eat and drink too much, but sometimes, either as a guest or a host, you may find you have dined "not wisely, but too well." The first time you have a headache, sour stomach, or that nauseated feeling that follows over-indulgence in food or drink, do this: Toss some Eno's "Fruit Salt" into a glass of water and drink it while it fizzes. Then rest. In a few minutes you will feel better.

A man who is called upon to attend many banquets, speaking of Eno, says: "I make it a practise to take Eno's "Fruit Salt" both before and after hearty eating and drinking. It refreshes the mouth and sweetens the stomach, gets rid of the 'heavy' feeling. Best of all Eno keeps me regular in a thoroughly effective and gentle way, without the slightest unpleasantness or inconvenience."

Eno should be first thought in cases of over-indulgence. Also a dash of Eno in a glass of water morning and night, wards off constipation . . . such a pleasant, sure way to keep fit, vital, ready for work and play. Be free from clogged intestines and all the ills of incomplete elimination. Be normal, be vital. Take a dash of Eno in a glass of water every day. You'll like it. Handy size 50c. Household size $5c.

Act Amendment Is Protested

Classification of Water Accounts as Tax Arrears Unjust, Says Saanich

In no uncertain terms the Saanich Council yesterday evening protested amendment to the Municipal Act, which classifies delinquent water accounts as tax arrears.

Councillor E. C. Warren, Ward Two, threatened to resign his seat if the council put into effect the amendment which is already law and which required the municipality to serve notice on persons whose water accounts were in arrears on May 1, last year.

The council instructed R. R. F. Sewell, municipal clerk, to take the matter up with the Minister of Municipalities to determine whether or not the rule must be observed this year.

The far-reaching effects of the law, which would depossess a man of his house if his water accounts were three years in arrears, were pointed out by the council and Councillor Leslie Passmore, Ward Seven, said he would leave the council if such action became necessary.

AMENDMENT CLARIFIED

The amendment was first introduced into the Legislature two years ago and was clarified at the last session. It provides the municipalities "shall" deem water arrears as tax arrears and serve notice to that effect. It also makes the arrears retroactive to March, 1934.

It was pointed out that the amendment was introduced without the Union of B.C. Municipalities being consulted.

Councillor A. G. Lambrick thought it should be taken up with the union to have revision made, while Councillor Passmore thought Saanich should ignore the amendment and take the lead in a move against it at the approaching provincial session.

Set Hearing For Zoning

A public hearing to determine whether or not zoning will be introduced in Ward Three, Saanich, will be held by the Municipal Council on February 25.

Zoning for this area was approved by a large majority at the January elections and it is now incumbent on the council to decide whether or not it shall be instituted.

At the hearing the council will hear arguments for and against the question.

The council will also hold a public hearing to determine the future of the Malahat Fox Farm, on February 18.

Several complaints against the location of the farm have been filed with the council and it is proposed to hear the issue discussed by both sides. If the council should decide in favor of the complainants, the farm will have to be moved.

The municipal court of revision of the assessment roll will sit on February 10. The final date of filing written appeals against assessments has passed.

Importance Of Oil Stressed

Petroleum Major Factor in Peace and War, William Day Tells Rotarians

"Petroleum now is the major factor affecting the welfare of nations in peace as in war," William Day, of the Home Oil Company, told members of the Rotary club, whom he addressed at their luncheon today on the subject of "The World's Petroleum."

Mr. Day quoted the famous words of Clemenceau in his appeal to President Wilson in 1917: "Oil is as essential as blood in the battles of to-morrow." Wilson had unlocked a great extra volume of tanker tonnage at the time when the Allies' supplies had been much depleted by the German submarine campaign, and the Allied cause had floated to victory on a wave of oil.

To-day, by damming up the oil supply, those same powers were considering ending of a war.

"Mussolini's dreams of empire are in danger of being caught between the upper and nether millstones of naval supremacy and petroleum control," the speaker said.

While taking the lead in lining up the nations for sanctions against Italy, Great Britain was herself anxiously looking to her oil supplies. Half of her stocks came from the Mediterranean basin through narrow ocean lanes especially vulnerable to air or submarine attack, and the other half from the United States, Venezuela, and other countries of the western hemisphere.

DOMINATES POLICIES

The question of oil supplies had dominated the policies of many nations. The Munroe Doctrine of the United States was aimed at South American oilfields, and Britain's policy in Iraq and Palestine had similar objects, Mr. Day said.

Britain was anxiously turning to the hydrogenation of oil from coal as a supplementary supply in time of war, and as world reserves became exhausted. Excellent results had been obtained.

The importance of the United States in the supply of oil to Italy had been much overrated, said Mr. Day. He quoted the figures for Italy's imports in the first eight months of last year. Roumania had supplied 48 per cent, while the United States came last of the five nations shipping petroleum to Italy, with 6 per cent.

PEACE-TIME VICTORIES

Speaking of the oil industry's peace-time victories, Mr. Day referred to the enormous structure of industry which was built on its back.

The value of crude oil produced by the wells of the United States since 1898 amounted to $21,000,000,000. The automobile industry was valued in figures which reached an astronomical total. In addition 21 per cent of the steel industry and 75 per cent of the plate glass industry depended on the automobile business.

In 1898 there had been four automobiles in the United States burning gasoline. Now there was one for every 5.01 inhabitants, so that every man, woman and child in the nation could ride at once.

He also mentioned aviation and the Diesel-powered railway developments.

Yet although oil had been known to the world since the beginning of history, when it seeped to the surface, it was only in 1858 that a German scientist had drilled the first producing well, and in 1859 that the first United States well had been sunk, a project at the time considered mad.

DIVISION OF OUTPUT

Mr. Day produced a chart showing the division of the world's oil production. At present the United States had 60.1 per cent of the total. Texas, California and Oklahoma alone accounting for nearly half of the world's output. Russia was second, having passed Venezuela in 1927.

These figures, however, had no relation to the potential reserves, of which the United States had probably only 12 per cent.

The oilfields of the world fell into two main areas, the Mediterranean basin and the Gulf of Mexico. There were no indications that any other major fields, yet undiscovered, existed.

Mr. Day mentioned the great double pipe line, with 700 mile of legs stretching over Syria to Tripoli and Palestine to Haifa, which brought the flow of the Iraq fields to the Mediterranean sea-board.

The oil industry itself, said Mr. Day, was the greatest factor towards the conservation of the world's oil reserves, through the technical improvements which had doubled the usefulness of each barrel of crude oil in the last twenty years.

Frank Anders, master of ceremonies of the Home Gas Optimists, was present at the luncheon, and introduced Isabelle McEwan, who sang "The Quintuplets' Lullaby," accompanied at the piano by Jack Emerson, and Frank Vyvyan, who impersonated The Vancouver Province news broadcaster.

Plaskett Tells Of Europe Tour

Astrophysical Director Emeritus Gives First Lecture Since Return

Dr. J. S. Plaskett, director emeritus of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, yesterday evening at the Y.W.C.A., before the Victoria Centre of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada delivered his first lecture since his return from nearly a year spent in visiting astronomical centres, attending scientific gatherings in Europe and delivering the 1935 Halley lecture at Oxford.

Commander Tingley, president of the society, introduced Dr. Plaskett as "the man who had put Victoria on the celestial map."

Taking as his subject "Sidelights on Astronomy in Europe," Dr. Plaskett first told of participating with Mrs. Plaskett and their younger son in the King George Jubilee celebrations in London last May. He spoke of the loyalty and devotion manifested by the English crowds during Jubilee week.

"We must all feel very happy that the King was spared to see this wonderful demonstration of loyalty and personal affection on the part of the people towards himself," Dr. Plaskett said.

He went on to tell of the meetings he attended of the members of the British Astronomical Association and of the Royal Astronomical Society. He was in contact in these groups with such internationally prominent thinkers as Jeans, Eddington and Milne. He spoke of the conflict between Jeans and Eddington, and how keenly it was waged on every occasion—Jeans espousing his long-time scale theory of the universe giving it a past expansion life of a million-million years, while Eddington urged his conviction of a short-time scale of 2,000-million years.

With the aid of slides, Dr. Plaskett illustrated the buildings and the leading personalities. Dr. Plaskett told of his visits to the chief British observatories—the Royal Observatory at Greenwich, the Solar Physics Observatory at Cambridge, the Oxford University Observatory, of which his son, H. H. Plaskett, is director, and the Radcliffe Observatory. He also referred to his own delivery of the Halley lecture on June 5 at Oxford on the dimension of the galaxy, giving it a diameter of 100,000 light years.

Later in the summer he went to Paris to participate in the fifth annual meeting of the International Astronomical Union. He dwelt on the human interest features of that gathering, and then showed pictures taken on his previous astronomical expedition to Europe, pointing out and talking about the leaders in the science.

Robert Peters gave a short talk on the Astronomical Handbook for 1936, produced by local astronomers.

Past President R. Boyd Bryden announced the gift to the society's library of a number of books on astronomy.

President Tingley announced an essay competition with prizes on astronomical subjects.

Relief Loans Are Refused

The provincial government yesterday evening officially notified the Saanich Council no further borrowings for relief works would be permitted. The letter was received without comment.

Saanich last year took advantage of the opportunity to make a loan of this kind, borrowing over $16,000 for relief work.

MAKE APPEAL FOR HOSPITAL

Jubilee Directors Seek Financial Aid From Saanich Council

An urgent appeal to the Saanich Council to endeavor this year to make an added grant to the Jubilee Hospital, which is operating under a $34,000 deficit, was made by hospital directors to the council yesterday evening.

The appeal was made by a delegation of Hugh Allan, S. J. Drake, James Forman, H. H. Shandley, J. J. Muir and J. Vaughan Roberts.

Mr. Allan said last year work valued at $44,937 was done for Saanich patients. Of this amount, $15,194 was paid by the patients and $10,393 was paid by Saanich in per diem grants at seventy cents a day.

The left 48 per cent of the account unpaid. The amount of treatment for indigent patients was $26,500, Mr. Allan said.

As a result of these deficits in Saanich cases, tradesmen and employees were forced to carry the load, the former having to wait sixty to ninety days for payment of accounts and the latter being paid a low scale of salaries. Also repairs and renewals had to be neglected. The directors were asking no more than that Saanich pay its share, Mr. Allan said in appealing for the inclusion in this year's estimates of a grant in addition to the per diem payment.

SAANICH SHORT

Mr. Drake said that after a pro rata division of the government grant, there was a shortage of $10,514 on the Saanich account. In dealing with payments by other municipalities, Mr. Drake said Oak Bay had a credit, Esquimalt a small deficit and the city a small deficit.

"The directors are between the devil and the deep sea. We have to take patients; we cannot refuse them," he said.

At the end of last year there was $34,155 in outstanding accounts, $10,000 of which was added during 1935.

There was only 33.6 per cent of Saanich hospital bills paid during the year, as compared with the following percentages in other areas. Victoria, 37.8; Esquimalt, 44.6; Oak Bay, 78.2, and unorganized territory, 54.8.

Mr. Shandley supported the previous speaker's remarks and drew special attention to the splendid work of the senior and junior auxiliaries.

IMPORTANT COSTS

Mr. Forman paralleled the hospital situation with that pertaining to education. "You pay education costs to the last cent, why not pay for indigent hospital cases?" he asked.

Illness, he contended, was as vital a responsibility as education. The municipality paid out $80,000 for education last year, and yet did not pay an extra $10,000 for its share of hospital costs.

Reference was made by Councillor L. C. Hagan to the fact that state health insurance might aid hospital financing, but Mr. Forman assured "you are getting a service at the Jubilee Hospital you would never get under political management."

The council tabled the matter pending consideration of the estimates.

The Victoria Short Wave Club will hold a meeting at 2024 Carnarvon Street on Saturday evening.

Watch for Bladder Weakness

After Colds, Grippe and "Flu"

"Have you had a hard cold, grippe or "flu" this winter? Then by all means watch and guard your kidneys and bladder for they are apt to be left weakened, clogged and sluggish from your illness," said Dr. Southworth, then prominent practicing physician. Many chronic and serious kidney and bladder ailments start this way, and it is best to "nip" them at the start, before they get dangerous and hard to overcome. Watch for weakness or stiffness and pain in your side, back or loins, scanty or highly colored urine with sediment like brick dust, frequent desire, night rising, pain or pressure, inflammation or prickling, scalding sensation. If you have any of these symptoms, your Bladder needs help at once, and you should ask your druggist for the Dr. Southworth special Uratabs formula which for many years has been giving quick, sure relief in just such conditions to thousands of people living in this section. One package—lasting ten days—can generally be depended on to get you functioning naturally again, and even the first day's use brings blessed relief in nearly every case. This has been so often and thoroughly proved that Dr. Southworth has told every druggist to refund the price of the first package to any purchaser who is not completely satisfied with results.

SECOND SECTION — VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1936 — SECOND SECTION

Red Horner Is Released From New York Hospital Today

THE SPORTS MIRROR

SPIDER MATLOCK had around 250 breaks, bruises and burns. It was inevitable that the fatal break would go against him. It did on the little dirt Ascot Speedway in Los Angeles when the car of Al Gordon blew a tire and crashed over the retaining wall, killing the renowned driver and his daredevil mechanic. The odds against Gordon were heavy enough, although his risk was confined to tracks, so what could the price on Matlock have been? Spider courted death in any old line.

William E. Matlock was one of the "Thirteen Black Cats" — reckless chaps who performed stunts in and out of motion pictures. Only two survive. A director wanted a hardy soul who wasn't particular about his health to ride a motorcycle into a brick wall two feet high and go sailing over the handlebars. A papier mache section was constructed and a would-be stunt man rode into it. He went sailing through. Nothing happened that would excite flicker fans.

* * *

Matlock was called in. Spider wasn't happy unless the thrill was real, so he chose a section of solid wall. He figured that he would soar about twenty feet after hitting it and had a net set up at that point. Spider whizzed along while cameras whirred and smacked the wall with a terrific impact. Head over tea kettle he went, clearing the net by ten feet and crashing through enough scenery to give "Midsummer Night's Dream" a good start.

* * *

Matlock and Bon McDougal tried out an airplane that Spider had just purchased. They took turns at the stick to see if one could make the other say uncle. Each gave an excellent imitation of the whirls, twirls, and landings of Omar Locklear, another daredevil who died. As Matlock started to set the plane down, McDougal leaned over the side as a means of aiding his personal condition. His knee hit the stick. Thinking that McDougal was signaling that he wanted to land the ship, Matlock turned loose the controls and the plane crashed, a total wreck. McDougal had a broken nose, Matlock a broken thumb.

Matlock was in the car with Billy Arnold when the 500-mile race at Indianapolis was worth $52,150 to that twenty-three-year-old pilot in 1930. The following Memorial Day they had a six-lap lead at the end of 425 miles when their mount struck an oil spot. The axle crumpled and the machine, traveling 140 miles an hour, went into a fearful spin. Another car smashed broadside into the Arnold-Matlock carryall, sending the leaders over the wall in flames. Arnold suffered a fractured pelvis and hip, broken ribs, and other injuries. Matlock emerged with a broken collarbone.

The next year at Indianapolis, Pete Chris spun in front of them. In missing Chris, Arnold and Matlock again hurtled over the wall. This time Matlock suffered virtually the same injuries that Arnold sustained twelve months before, while the famous young driver escaped almost unscathed.

Gordon, too, laughed at death after a dozen years as a knight of the roaring bricks, dirt and boards. The heavy-footed man of Long Beach, Cal., rammed the Indianapolis wall in a spin in 1934. Gordon and his mechanic, Jimmy Dunham, had a miraculous escape in the big race in 1935, when their car shot into a streak of oil. It swerved and crashed into the concrete embankment, only a few yards from a gap in the wall where a driver had died just before. In a split second the car had overturned and was perched on the wall, but its occupants were only bruised.

* * *

Gordon could not expect to be so fortunate forever, yet he rode on and on. Matlock did not have to have good luck to remain in the thick of his hazardous callings. Why automobile race drivers and stunt men continue to risk their necks in the face of so many terrifying examples is hard to say. Certainly, there are safer ways of making a living. Perhaps old Reggie McNamara spoke for them, too, when he was asked: "What are you going to do, die on a bike?" "Naw," replied the fifty-two-year-old pedal pusher, "I'll die if they take me off one."

Toronto Defence Star Not Badly Hurt From Crash

Has Eight Stitches Taken in Head After Colliding With Red Dutton

ACCIDENT, SAYS AMERKS' PILOT

Canadian Press

New York, Feb. 7.—Reginald "Red" Horner, robust Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman, left Polyclinic Hospital this morning and was to entrain for home later in the day. Surgeons held a lengthy consultation over the player and announced he had suffered no permanent or serious injuries in yesterday evening's rousing hockey match here against New York Americans.

Horner spent the night in the hospital after suffering bloody head gashes in the first period of the National League game when checked hard by Manager Red Dutton of the Amerks.

EIGHT STITCHES

Horner fell backwards and his head struck the ice. He suffered a long deep cut down the back of his skull and a smaller gash crosswise. Eight stitches were needed to close the wound.

It is almost certain the popular sorrel-top will not be able to play Saturday night when Amerks invade Toronto.

Big Red was semi-conscious for fifteen minutes after his head crashed the ice with a thud heard throughout spacious Madison Square Garden But he had regained his full senses on reaching the hospital and telephoned his wife from there that "there is no cause for worry."

The bad spill came as Horner engineered a three-man thrust on the American net. Goalie Worters fended Red's shot, but Bill Thoms swept in for the rebound. As Horner closed in, the burly Dutton checked him with such steam the Toronto rearguard was knocked off his feet.

Some writers in the press-box reported Dutton hooked his stick about Horner's neck. Assistant Manager Frank Selke of the Leafs was of the opinion it "undoubtedly was an accident." He pointed out Dutton was not penalized, indicating the officials who handled the game view the check as legal.

Horner was carried to a dressing room and Dr. Henry Glauss of the Garden staff dressed a gaping gash on the back of the player's head. The wound was five inches across, with another of three inches running vertically. Eight stitches were taken, then Red hurried across the street to the hospital.

"I don't know how it happened," Horner said to-day. "I was just starting to turn around to see where Thoms was going to pass when the crash came. I did not even know it was Dutton who checked me."

In the dressing room after the game Manager Dutton said it was purely accidental. "I rushed to cover Horner and was going so fast I could not stop, so as I saw a collision coming I raised my stick to protect my face. There was not the least intention on my part to hurt Horner."

CENTAUR CLUB HAS ELECTION

Colonel H. C. Greer Is Named Captain of Polo Group

Col. H. C. Greer was elected captain of the Centaur's Polo Club at the recent third annual meeting. G. D. Tyson was named vice-captain; Stephen B. Lloyd secretary, and J. G. Hazelwood, treasurer.

It was decided for the benefit of the many people who are interested in polo from the spectators' angle, to institute a non-playing membership with a subscription of $1 per annum. Space will be allotted and reserved on the field for the convenience of non-playing members in such a way that they will be able to view the games from their cars. Anyone who wishes to take advantage of this opportunity is asked to communicate with one of the officers of the club.

Several new players applied for membership in the club, and were duly elected. Season play will commence as soon as weather conditions permit after the end of March.

Outdoor Sport Tomorrow Off

All rugby and football matches scheduled here tomorrow afternoon have been called off owing to the frozen conditon of the grounds. Cancellation of the games was announced today by President Arthur Cox of the Victoria Rugby Union and Alex. Robertson, chairman of the Victoria committee of the B.C. Football Commission.

In addition to-morrow's McKechnie Cup rugby game at Vancouver between Victoria and Varsity has been postponed.

TULLY SHIELD GAME DRAWN

Victoria and Oak Bay Girls Tie in Grass Hockey Battle 3 to 3

With a light wall of snow covering the field the first of the three games for the May Tully Shield was played yesterday at the Fernwood grounds and resulted in the Victoria High School girls' grass hockey team battling to a 3 to 3 deadlock with the Oak Bay High eleven, present holders of the shield.

In the event of the series ending in a tie the winner will be decided by total goals.

A feature of the play was the skilfull performance of Sheila Swift, the speedy young Oak Bay winger. She scored a goal and had one assist.

The Oak Bay players had the edge in the first half and at the whistle for the interval were leading 3 to 2 but a goal scored by Kay MacDonald in the second half resulted in tying the score.

The next game will be played on February 5 at the Oak Bay grounds

OAK BAY LEADS

Oak Bay opened the scoring ten minutes after the opening whistle when Sheila Swift smashed a well-placed ball through the goal. The next goal came soon after when Sheila Swift passed into centre and Kay MacDonald in attempting to clear it knocked the ball into her own goal scoring the second goal for the visitors.

Anna Peden scored the first one of the home team's goals by smashing the ball past the opposing goaltender.

Anne Lyster scored the final goal for Oak Bay by dribbling down the field and driving the ball into the net.

Victoria High gained the ball from the face-off and dribbled down the field and Lois Bell shot the ball shoulder high through the goal for the second goal for the home team.

Kay MacDonald scored the tying goal by batting the ball in from a scrimmage around the goal.

Mrs. W. Tomalia refereed and Miss Barbara Hinton umpired.

The teams were:

Victoria High—Eleanor Moffat; Hilda Smith and Iris Evans; Annie Brevis, Kay MacDonald and Kae Gahan; Lois Bell, Peggy White, Anna Peden, Violet Waterworth and Eva Malcolm.

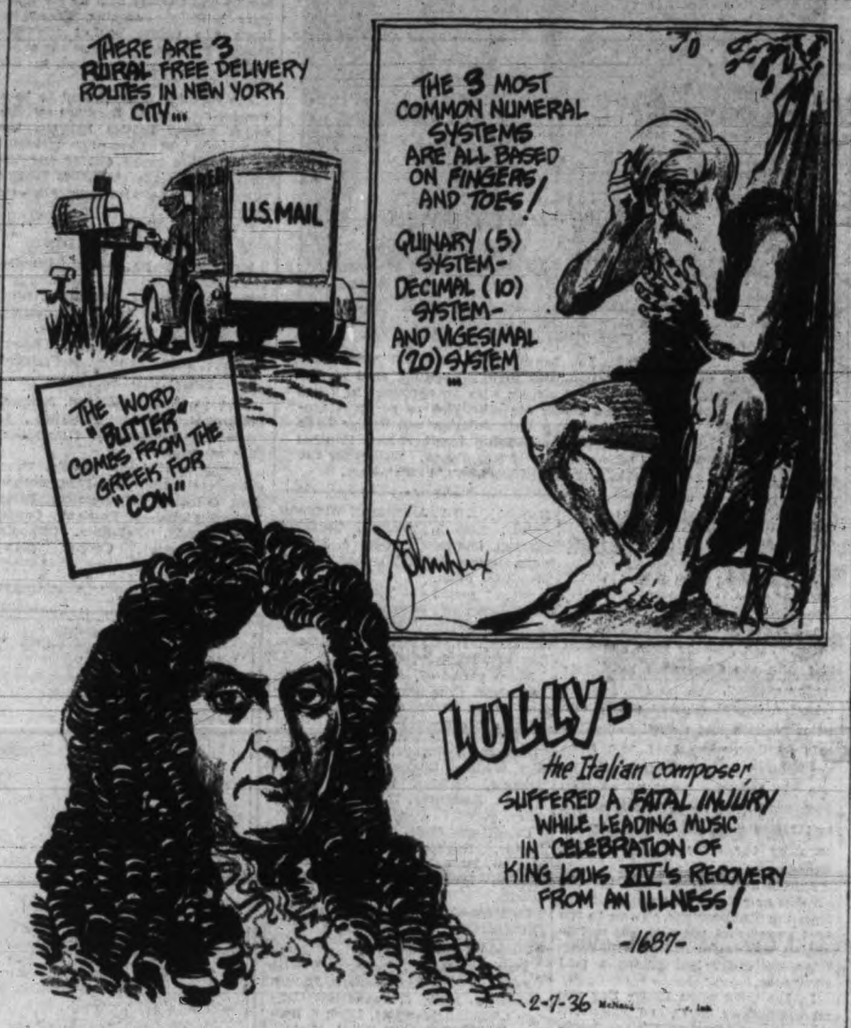
STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

—By John Hix



When men began to count, they counted like children—on their fingers. This finger-counting is the basis of our present decimal numeral system. Ten is the basis of our system—ten as represented by the fingers on both hands.

Strange as it seems, however, other numeral systems have been developed similarly. There is the quinary system, using five as the basis, which was developed from counting the fingers on one hand. This system is found in the pure form in Saraweka, a native language in South America. Elsewhere it has been combined with other systems.

A more widely used and highly developed system includes both the fingers and toes in its basis—the number being twenty. In this, the vigesimal system, our five equals "one hand," our ten is "two hands," while eleven is "one at the foot," and twenty is "the whole man."

This system is found in many places—throughout Australia, in India and Africa, among Eskimos and California Indians, and in Central America where it was developed by the Aztecs and Mayans.

In January, 1687, after King Louis XIV recovered from a serious illness, a special Te Deum was composed in celebration by Jean Baptiste Lully, Italian composer. Lully, in conducting this song of thanks, accidentally struck his foot with his baton. An infection developed, necessitating amputation of his leg. He died a few days later.

Boston Bruins Win And Leave Cellar

Defeat Canadiens 4 to 3 to Hurdle New York Rangers in American Section of National Hockey League; Americans Beat Toronto; Detroit Blanks Chicago

Americans 4, Toronto 3.

Boston 4, Canadiens 3.

Detroit 1, Chicago 0.

Toronto, Stanley Cup stock crashed to a new low today as Maple Leafs faced the loss of Red Horner and King Clancy, colorful defencemen, for an indefinite period—possibly the remaining six weeks of the season.

Injuries the two suffered yesterday evening in a clash with Americans at New York removed them from the National Hockey Hockey League picture just as Leafs seemed to be recovering from a month-long slump.

Their absence will greatly lessen Leafs' chances of finishing on top in the Canadian division.

The injury to Clancy, spark-plug of many Leaf attacks and a great inspirational player, is not as serious as the head wounds Horner suffered but may shorten the veteran's playing career. He twisted his knee in a game at Toronto last Saturday and yesterday evening it developed into a bad charley horse when he clashed with Al Murray, American defenceman.

RALLY TO WIN

Besides their loss in player strength Toronto missed an opportunity to break their tie with Maroons for the division lead when Americans came from behind three times to defeat them 4 to 3 with Sweeney Schriner's third-period goal deciding the contest.

Johnny Sorrell's goal midway through the second period gave Detroit Red Wings a 1 to 0 victory over

Canadian Hockey Squad Smothers Latvia By 11 to 0

Dominion's Olympic Representatives Hardly Get Workout in Today's Game

U.S. AND SWEDEN WIN THEIR TILTS

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Feb. 7.—In a match that was scarcely more than a workout Canada's hockey team today registered its second straight triumph in the fourth Olympic Winter Games, defeating Latvia 11 to 0.

The match was the first event on today's programme and the storm that marred yesterday's opening ceremonies and competition still raged when the teams skated out for their practice session. However, shortly after the game had started the snow ceased failing and the sun broke through the thick clouds.

In other games played today United States defeated Switzerland 3 to 0 and Sweden blanked Japan 2 to 0.

CHANGES TEAM

Coach Albert Pudas changed his Canadian lineup somewhat to-day, but as in yesterday's 8 to 1 victory over Poland the Dominion puckmen outclassed their opponents from start to finsh. During most of the game the defencemen had so little to do they moved up and joined in the attack against the harrassed Latvian goalkeeper.

It did not matter which forward line Coach Pudas sent out it was too bad for the overwhelmed Latvians and only the clever, acrobatic playing of the losing team's goalkeeper prevented the score reaching double figures even before the second period was finished.

Hugh Farquharson and Ralph St. Germain, the Montreal contribution to the Maple Leaf team, were the big scoring guns in today's one-sided tussle. The former slammed four counters past the bewildered Latvian netminder and assisted in three others. St. Germain registered three times and made the play for another pair. Dave Neville, another Montrealer, was also prominent with two goals and an assist, while Jimmy Haggarty, formerly of Port Arthur, but more recently of England, notched two tallies and got credit for a pair of assists.

Most of the spectators, there were not many, as the game was the first event on to-day's programme, left convinced Canada has a stranglehold on the Olympic title, which she has at every Olympiad since hockey became an official part of the Winter Games' schedule.

NASH IN GOAL

Coach Pudas gave Arthur "Jakie" Nash, netminder of Port Arthur, a chance to limber up by allowing him to guard the Canadian cage today. Fortunately it was not unusually cold, so Nash did not suffer, although he had so little to do he was skating around in front of his net a good deal of the time to keep warm. The Latvians hoisted one puck at Nash in the first period and hardly more than that in the last two chapters.

WALLACE MEETS BARCIA

The Vancouver welter fought a draw with Garcia in the first and lost a decision over the twelve-round route in the second meeting. They go ten rounds tonight, Garcia recently floored Barney Ross in San Francisco, but the Chicago champion won the decision and made it two in a row in the second fight in Chicago.

Local Referees Take A Tests

The five seeking tickets will be A. Le Marquand, Tommy Macedo, R. Macmurchie, W. Stipe and A. Harding. The judges will be E. L. Yeo, Vancouver, and Chuck Chapman and Bob Whyte.

BIG ASSAULT ON RECORDS

Seattle Swimmers Real Anxious to Set New Marks in Saturday's Gala

Seattle, Feb. 7. — A wholesale assault upon existing swimming records was planned today by seven Washington Athletic Club swimmers who will be taken to Victoria Saturday night by Ray Daughters to compete in the "widwinter gala."

Daughters said Jack Medica would attempt to lower Johnny Weissmuller's 3.41 1-5 time for the 300-meter race as one of the meet's feature events.

His girls' relay team of Olive McKean, Doris Buckley, Betty Lea and Mary Lou Petty will shoot for the only relay record they do not yet hold—the 400-yard long course mark. The Women's Swimming Association, New York, set the present time of 4.33 2-5.

Mary Lou Petty will seek the 700-yard American record now held by Dorothea Dickinson, New York, at 9.51 3-5.

Daughters plans to send Olive McKean and Betty Lea against Marion Moffat, Vancouver, B.C., at 100 yards in a match backstroke race. Miss Moffat defeated Miss McKean at Vancouver last week.

Janet Hughes, junior swimmer, and Miss Becker, a driver, will round out the Seattle contingent.

Loca officials announced to-day that Noel Oxenbury, New Westminster's smart junior star, will be over for the meet. This youngster holds Canadian junior freestyle and backstroke records, and has been a competitor in two British Empire Games.

Tickets for the international gala now on sale at the Crystal Garden

GOLFER CLIMBS TREE

Seattle, Feb. 7.—Leo Miller, vice-president of the Wayne Golf Club, said today he got his par three at the short seventh hole, but he got it the hard way.

His tee shot lodged fourteen feet up in a tree. Rather than deem it unplayable he climbed the tree, swung, connected and sent the ball on the green, close enough to hole out with one putt.

BOSTON BRUINS WIN AND LEAVE CELLAR

Chicago Black Hawks in Chicago and the leadership of the American division. Jack Adams's team has been tied with the Chicagoans until yesterday evening.

Boston Bruins climbed out of one cellar position and shoved Canadiens into another when they won from the Habitants 4 to 3 at Montreal. The win put Bruins a point up on New York Rangers in the American section and left Canadiens trailing Americans by the same margin in the Canadian.

Americans came through in the pinches and richly deserved their win from the Torontonians. Twice in the first period and again in the middle session, Red Dutton's team tied Leafs after the latter had gained a goal advantage.

In the third when Happy Day was on the penalty bench and Americans were playing four forwards up, Schriner swerved around Charley Conacher and drove in on George Hainsworth for the winning tally.

Nick Metz took over goal scoring leadership of the Canadian division when he marked up Leafs' first goal. He now has a total of fourteen. Charley Conacher and Bill Thoms got the other Toronto goals, while Eddie Wiseman, Red Doran and Carl Voss tied the game up at various times for Americans.

Ted Graham, Boston defenceman, was the hero of the Bruin win at Montreal, scoring two of their goals, both on passes from Peggy O'Neill. Canadiens came from behind twice but Graham beat them with his final tally midway through the final period.

Red Beattie opened the scoring for Boston in the first and after Polly Drouin and Johnny Gagnon put Habitants ahead Graham tied it up in that period. Babe Siebert got the only goal of the middle frame, and Jack McGill banged home the Canadien tally in the third.

PORTLAND IN HOCKEY LEAD

Defeat Seattle 2 to 1 in Wild Game to Forge Ahead in Northwest League

Portland Buckaroos stood on the top rung of the Northwest Hockey League ladder today after the hockey wars of yesterday which saw them take Seattle 2 to 1 at home and Edmonton go down before the Tigers of Calgary by the same score on home ice to slip to the bottom of the league.

Observers looked at the standings today to find the Bucks leading the league with a one-point margin over Seattle and Calgary in a tie for third place with the sagging Vancouver Lions two points behind the Sea Hawks. Edmonton occupies the cellar position still another point in the rear.

The Portland game proved to be a free-for-all with all the hard feelings which attend battles between the arch-rivals. Penalties were plentiful as fist-fights broke out among the players. Even the spectators became engaged, one attacking Referee Bernie Morris.

Seattle Elks To Oppose Dominoes

Sound City Quintette to Make First Appearance Here Tomorrow When They Meet Dominion Champs at High School; Preliminary at 8 o'Clock

Boasting an excellent record, Seattle Elks, Northwest Community Basketball League quintette, expect to add the scalps of the Victoria Dominoes, ruling monarchs of Canadian basketball, to their list of victims this season, when they make their Victoria debut to-morrow evening at the High School gym.

The only other fixture carded will bring together Island Tug Red Stacks and Kingham-Gillespie, in the second and final game of the two-game total-point play-off series, for the intermediate A city championship. This tilt will get under way at 8 o'clock Red Stacks won the initial encounter 37 to 25.

With the majority of their players composed of youngsters just out of the High School, the Seattle Elks have a strong and aggressive squad, which should make it interesting for the Dominion champions. They are reputed to be fast on the break and are good at the long shots. On their team is Tinker Johnson, one of the high scorers in the league. Two other lads who are well to the front for scoring honors are Bob Milroy and Jack Voelker.

Eight players, John Griffin, forward; Dick Foster, Harlan Jackson and Ralph George, guards; Bob Milroy and Jack Voelker, forwards, and Tinker Johnson, centre, will make the trip.

The Elks defeated Willoughby Cleaners 52 to 28 in Seattle on Tuesday evening.

Doug Peden and Chuck Chapman will play in the guard position for the Dominoes. Art Chapman will be at centre. "Porky" Andrews and Albert Martin will work on the forward line, Jack Mottishaw, Axel Kinnear, Ollie Goldsmith and Alex McReachie will be the reserves.

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal trouble of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

CABINET TALKS SESSIONAL PLANS

The provincial cabinet held its longest session for months today, sitting for two and one-half hours.

It was understood to be discussing legislative plans for the coming session of the House.

Premier Pattullo was absent on the mainland, but Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, presided. He made no announcements afterwards, stating the government had not come to conclusions on the several matters such as health insurance, the loan council, the budget and other policies now taking shape.

Most of the cabinet ministers are putting in overtime work at present preparing for the session.

MATINEE WILL START LATER

Because the train on which they are traveling from the east will not reach Vancouver until after midnight, the Romilly Boy Singers will not arrive in Victoria until tomorrow afternoon, instead of tomorrow morning as originally expected.

Their matinee performance at the Empire Theatre will commence at 3.45 o'clock instead of 2.30 o'clock. The boys will go directly from the steamer to the theatre. They will also give a performance at the theatre in the evening.

Says Canadian Hospitals Best

Dr. T. W. Walker Tells Kinsmen of Administration of Jubilee Hospital

Canadian hospitals were superior to any others on the Ameri- perior to any others on the Ameri- superintendent of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, told members of the Kinsmen's Club at a dinner at the Empress Hotel last night.

Dr. Walker reviewed the administration and operation of the Jubilee Hospital, one of the seventeen biggest institutions in Canada.

He said that neither Esquimalt nor Saanich paid the Jubilee more than the 70 cents per day per patient minimum stipulated by the provincial government, while the cost to the hospital was considerably higher.

The club decided to make use of its option on the Crystal Garden for the May 24 celebration. Arrangements for the holding of the Kinsmen Clubs' district convention here, April 4 and 5, were discussed.

World's Worst Actors Appear

"If You Can't Do Better," Play Goes Out Says Frantic Director.

Although members of the Victoria Press Club have had a measure of success in organizing stunts for previous Valentine balls they ran into a snag this year when they decided themselves to take part in a short dramatic playlet at the Empress Hotel party next Friday.

After selecting what he thought would be a capable cast for a two-minute act, Director Percy Richards found nothing but trouble in the first rehearsal yesterday.

"You must," said Mr. Richards in disguest after an hour's hard work, "be the world's worst ham actors. I did not think it possible for a group to be so dumb."

There was a round of applause from a small group of spectators who were watching the rehearsal.

After another hour of hard work Mr. Richards slammed the script on the floor in disgust.

"If that's the best you can do the thing should go right out," he snarled. "The only way we can save it is by billing you as the world's greatest hams."

Subdued, the actors promised to try harder at the next rehearsal.

William A. Mather, general manager, C.P.R. western lines, Winnipeg, left by the afternoon boat today for Vancouver en route east. Before leaving Mr. Mather said he was satisfied with his inspection of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway system. He made the trip over the line as far as Port Alberni with J. A. Kennedy, general superintendent of the E. & N. Railway.

ICY PATCHES ON HIGHWAY

The Island Highway is icy in patches, but otherwise all right for traffic, the driver of the Nanaimo bus of the Vancouver Island Coach Lines said when he arrived in Victoria shortly before noon today.

The driver reported no delays caused by the cold. He said he had passed through snow on the way up last night, but had encountered clear weather all the way this morning.

ABANDONS SUIT AGAINST TODD

Counter-action For Divorce Comes to Sudden End; Divorce Trial Resumed

When the scene of the Todd divorce trials was switched back from North Vancouver to Victoria today, W. D. Todd, plaintiff, took the stand and testified in rebuttal concerning the "K" letters found in his wife's trunk.

F. C. Elliott, counsel, read the opening of the "My Little Honey" and "My Dear Little Cherub" letters and asked whether they, as testified yesterday by his wife, had been sent to himself by the up-country member of the B.C. Legislature identified as the writer by J. H. Beatty, handwriting expert. Mr. Todd denied that he had ever had any correspondence at all with the writer of the letters.

Mr. Todd also denied the evidence of his wife, Edith Rosina Victoria Yeo Todd, that "K," the writer of the letters was "practically a member of the family." He said he recalled seeing him twice in his home here in Victoria and had later protested when he found the man sending his wife presents. Besides the letters he found telegrams signed by "K" in her trunk. The worst was when he found his wife had been given a diamond ring by the man.

"I said to my wife it did not look very good for her to be receiving a diamond ring from another man," Mr. Todd continued in reply to questions. She admitted she had received it from this man, witness testified.

Mr. Elliott exhibited the official province of B.C. envelope in which the telegrams and "K" letters were found in the trunk of Mrs. Todd. This bore only the blue crest supplied to members of the House and not ministerial stationery, as claimed by Mrs. Todd in her testimony when she said she had lots of official stationery that had been given her by a cabinet minister.

Much of this morning's time was taken up with the examination of a number of Victoria and Vancouver lodge women, including the one who had been named in the counter-suit against Mr. Todd by Mrs. Todd.

The counter-suit came to a sudden end this afternoon, when a Vancouver lodge leader, called to the stand by Mr. Beckwith, denied the allegations upon which the counter-suit had been based, including the report that she had had to caution the intervener because of an alleged interest in Mr. Todd. The lodge leader said there was nothing whatever against the intervener, that she invited her to her home and would continue to do so.

"In fairness to the parties named, I must say that in view of this evidence I am not justified in pressing the counter-charge. In bringing it I acted upon statements made to me," Mr. Beckwith said in addressing the court.

Mr. Elliott asked if this meant abandoning the case against Mr. Todd and the intervener. Mr. Beckwith replied it did.

"Unfortunately the name of this woman was brought into this case," said Mr. Justice Robertson. "There is no suggestion of immorality against her. She goes from this court with a pure and unstained record."

The justice ordered Mrs. Todd's petition dismissed with the question of costs to be decided.

Taking of evidence in Mr. Todd's action against his wife continues, however, with the court adjourning to resume on the case at 11 o'clock Monday morning.

BEDROOM COURT

North Vancouver, Feb. 7 (Canadian Press).—While her physician took her pulse at intervals and occasionally directed her to take sips of restoratives, Mrs. Todd testified for four hours Thursday to a bedroom court.

Mr. Justice Robertson and the court came from Victoria to hear the evidence of Mrs. Todd, who has been ill for some months.

Lawyers representing interested parties were attired in their legal robes which contrasted with the bright cretonne curtains and pink lamp shades of the boudoir. Registrar Ed. Wells, sat on another bed and the court stenographer wrote at a tiny table.

The sitting in the cosy North Shore bedroom was probably unique in the history of the Supreme Court of British Columbia.

Outside the doorway Mr. Todd listened to the testimony. Newspapermen were just inside.

Mrs. Todd denied improprieties with Brower Fitz, named as co-respondent. She also denied knowledge of endearing letters signed "K" which have been offered in evidence. "I've never heard of those letters before—I'm saying that on my oath," Mrs. Todd declared. Further examined she said the alleged writer had written her, but the letters were chiefly about business matters.

Skaters Should Exercise Care

Shallow Ponds Are Frozen But Lakes Not Safe Yet; Ice Is Rough

Lakes and ponds in the vicinity of Victoria and District were reported this morning as unfit for skating at the present time. The strong wind ruffling the surface of the water, has prevented good ice skating, but prospects are for good skating without danger by tomorrow.

Beacon Hill pond this morning was not yet safe for skating. Langford, Elk, Swan and Prospect Lakes have a thin coating of ice around the edges.

A number of skaters were out on Quick's Pond, Royal Oak, this morning, but it is not entirely safe. There is a big hole in the centre. A number of skaters were also out on the pond at Westwood Vale.

As yet no reports have come in as to the skating conditions at Spectacle Lake on the Malahat.

Colwood provided one sheet of ice to-day, but was not good owing to a rough surface.

Seven Syrian Rioters Killed

Seventeen Soldiers and Twelve Policemen Injured at Hama

Associated Press

Beirut, Syria, Feb. 7.—Seven persons were killed today in a fresh outburst of nationalist rioting at Hama, after seventeen soldiers, twelve policemen and a number of civilians were injured yesterday in an earlier demonstration.

Today troops fired on students after failing to overpower them in running battles through streets.

Four of the rioters were killed outright and three died of wounds.

The disorders, which followed inflammatory speeches at a mosque, were finally brought under control by the troops.

Markets and shops in all the main centres of Syria remained closed today, continuing the general strike in sympathy with the Nationalists.

The egg market strengthened again today. Grade A large and grade A medium advanced 2 cents a dozen, while grade A pullets were up 3 cents. Butter prices, however, were off 1 cent.

There is a shortage of spinach. No new supplies are expected until Monday or Tuesday.

California carrots have appeared on the local market. With the dump duty off, carrots are selling for two bunches for 15 cents with lower prices expected as supplies become more plentiful.

Imported bunch beets made their first appearance in Victoria yesterday. The beets are from California and are retailing here at two bunches for 25 cents.

The asparagus season has begun in the producing areas around San Francisco. Prices are too high to import yet, but if the crop is not damaged by the cold, asparagus should be selling in Victoria at about the earliest time on record.

Two shipments of Japanese oranges amounting to over 2,000 boxes were unloaded on Wednesday and yesterday, wholesalers announced this morning. These will be the last Japanese oranges this year. The fruit will sell at the same low price as has been prevailed since the beginning of the year, namely, about 50 cents a case.

LONG SUIT IS LOSER

Only Contract Made Is That Which Avoids Trap of Setting Up Run in Diamonds

By WM. E. McKENNEY

The American Bridge League inaugurated the individual masters' tournament in 1931. Individual matches at that time were something new for duplicate bridge players.

Previously, only tournaments of pairs and teams of four were held, but now tourneys in which every player plays with every other played as a partner are added to the list.

Here's a hand selected from the individual tournament recently held at the Crockford Club, in New York. While several pairs arrived at a six-diamond contract, which, of course, was defeated, a few played the hand at three no trump. Some failed to make it because they elected to play for the break in the diamond suit.

THE PLAY

Four no trump was made by one player in the following manner:

North: ♠ A ♥ A Q 7 3 ♦ J 9 8 6 5 3 2 ♣ 2
West: ♠ J 7 4 3 2 ♥ K 9 2 ♦ Void ♣ Q 10 7 6 3
East: ♠ 5 5 ♥ J 8 6 5 ♦ K Q 7 4 ♣ K 9 4
South (Dealer): ♠ K Q 10 9 6 ♥ 10 4 ♦ A 10 ♣ A J 8 6

Duplicate—None vul.

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
3 N. T.	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♣ 5. 28

The opening club lead was won by declarer with the ace, when East put on the king. To play for the diamond break seems natural, but you must remember that the ace of spades is blocking declarer's hand and, when the ace of diamonds is gone, the spade suit will be dead; so the first play should be a small spade to dummy's ace.

Now a small diamond was returned and the ten spot finessed. When it held, declarer played three rounds of spades. West winning the third spade with the jack.

West exited with a spade and declarer, after winning this trick, led a small heart, finessing dummy's queen. East played the five and declarer then cashed the ace of hearts. West unfortunately for declarer, played the nine spot.

Declarer now led a small heart from dummy and threw West into the lead with the king, forcing him to return clubs, and thereby giving declarer an extra trick.

If the king of hearts had been discarded by West on declarer's ace, the contract would have been held to three no trump.

(Copyright, 1936, NEA Service, Inc.)

Today's Contract Problem

In a contract of three no trump, South refuses to win the heart suit until the third round. What play must West make so his partner should return a diamond, and not a club?

North: ♠ A J 6 3 ♥ 6 5 4 ♦ K J 8 ♣ 10 7 3
West: ♠ 5 4 2 ♥ Q 10 8 7 3 ♦ A 3 2 ♣ J 9
East: ♠ K 8 7 ♥ K 9 ♦ 10 7 6 5 4 ♣ 8 6 5
South (Dealer): ♠ Q 10 9 ♥ A J 2 ♦ Q 9 ♣ A K Q 4 2

OUT OUR WAY By WILLIAMS

OPERA STAR REVIEW FILM

Gladys Swarthout Reviews Her First Feature Picture

Hollywood.—Describing her first motion picture, "Rose of the Rancho," with John Boles, Gladys Swarthout, Metropolitan Opera star, recently observed:

"The setting is the California of 1852 when the Spanish dons were being pushed back by pioneer settlers, and there was a lot of riding, shooting and intrigue going on. I have to ride a white horse myself, so I can testify to the amount of action in the picture.

"There is comedy, too, with Willie Howard and Herb Williams—another important component of successful pictures. But, of course, what I like best is the music and the way it is presented. John Boles and I sing our numbers naturally and with no pretense of 'setting a stage.' The characters sing because they like to sing. They just break into a song now and then, whenever it appears logical for them to want to sing.

"The music Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin wrote is a combination of popular melody with a semi-operatic quality, which I feel will become increasingly popular for the screen. As a matter of fact, my opening song, 'Don't Tell a Secret to a Rose,' is the only one in the picture that could be classed as an out-and-out dance orchestra number.

"John Boles has a romantic song, 'Little Rose of the Rancho,' and a drinking song, 'There's Gold in Monterey,' that have the lasting qualities which screen music is developing more and more."

Chaplin Makes First Talkie

Gala Premiere in New York City Attended by Crowds Who Paid $5.50 a Seat

New York, Feb. 7.—For the first time, Charlie Chaplin opened his mouth and made noises on the screen yesterday, and crowds of tail-coated men and ermine-wrapped women were there for the startling event.

The occasion was a gala premier of Chaplin's first picture since 1931, "Modern Times," at the Rivoli Theatre.

It was more like the opening night of the Metropolitan Opera. There were just as many feet of pearls and inches of top hat.

In the glare of Klieg lights on Broadway outside, thousands pressed to stare at celebrities, seek their autographs and even feel the texture of the evening gowns as they were escorted from their machines into the foyer.

A police emergency call was sounded and squads of patrolmen pushed the crowds back for two blocks.

Some of the notables were badly disarrayed when they gained their $5.50 seats.

The theme of "Modern Times" is the enslavement of workers by machines, treated in a serio-comic manner.

One of the biggest laugh-getters was a scene in which Chaplin was fed by machinery, which did not work very well.

Other amusing incidents had to do with men passing through gears and cogs and emerging unscathed.

In "Modern Times" the art of synchronizing sound reached new depths. Charlie and a dignified lady sitting side by side were not feeling well. The sound track brought the audience the grumblings of their complaining stomachs.

"Woman Trap," the new outdoor romance now in production with Gertrude Michael, George Murphy and Roscoe Karns, is being filmed mostly on locations, miles away from the studio.

YOUNG STAR AT DOMINION

Freddie Bartholomew Plays With Victor McLaglen in "Professional Soldier"

True friendship that proves itself under a hail of fire and in the face of gay adventure is the theme of the dashing, colorful and exciting 20th Century picture, "Professional Soldier," which opened today at the Dominion Theatre, to present Victor McLaglen and Freddie Bartholomew in their first co-starring role.

With a fascinating Damon Runyon yarn for its basis, the gusty writing of Gene Fowler and Howard Ellis Smith in the script, this grand adventure picture tells the amazing story of a little king and a blustering soldier of fortune who become pals in peril.

It all starts out as a carousing adventure with the none too scrupulous McLaglen agreeing to kidnap the king of a little European state for a price. He is in the pay of revolutionaries.

McLaglen and his assistant, played by Michael Whalen, carry out their part of the bargain, even though they lose their taste for it when they discover that the monarch is a stripling. They also carry away Gloria Stuart, who breaks in on them in the middle of the crime.

In a mountain hideaway, the king and the soldier strike up a fast friendship. McLaglen trains the lad in games in which he soon becomes more proficient than his instructor, and tells him horrific tales of bloodshed. Everything goes well, even the blossoming romance between Whalen and Miss Stuart, until a royalist plot carries the king back to his palace and McLaglen to a cell to await death.

Dickens's Story Will Show Here

With Ronald Colman at the head of an amazing list of stars and featured players, one of the great photoplays of all time opens tomorrow at the Capitol Theatre. It is "A Tale of Two Cities," from Charles Dickens's novel.

The picture takes its place with the few great immortal photoplays of history, from which time is dated in screen annals. It is magnificent entertainment.

Yet with a deftness that is almost inspired, the producers have not permitted the spectacular aspects to overshadow the human elements that make the picture truly great.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

The Zeppelin air raids on London are presented in their full drama and detail in the Fox film production, "The First World War," now at the Playhouse Theatre. The film was edited by Lawrence Stallings, whose book of the same title has been a best-selling sensation both in the United States and Europe.

Robert Florey, who just finished "Preview," has been signed to direct the picture "Reunion," featuring Gertrude Michael and Ray Milland.

Romilly Boys Here Tomorrow

The Romilly Boy Singers, who are to appear at the Empire Theatre in matinee and evening concerts tomorrow, hail from the famous Romilly School, in Barrie, South Wales. The school was endowed forty years ago by Lord Romilly, and while the boys who attend receive a very thorough elementary school education, the chief object of the endowment is the training they receive in music and all its branches. While every member of the group is a soloist in his own right, the leading soloist is Islwyn Roberts, who has earned no less than 300 medals, and on several occasions has won the solo competition for boys in the National Eisteddfod.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

From now on its "Commodore" Lee Tracy.

The fast talking, clever Lee, who appears with Jimmy Durante and Sally Eilers in "Carnival," now at the Columbia Theatre, has gone nautical and bought himself a yacht Or, maybe we should say a schooner. Anyway, it's sixty-five feet long, has sails and a Diesel engine, and the name of it is Adoree.

LITTLE ORPHEUM THEATRE

Willie Fung, Chinese comedian who appears in Clarence E. Mulford'se "Hopalong Cassidy," featuring William Boyd, Jimmy Ellison and Paula Stone, a Paramount release now playing at the Little Orpheum Theatre, when cast for his part as Salem, a Chinese cook in the first of the Mulford western stories to come to the screen, asked if "Hopalong" was a Chinese picture.

It seems that Fung had just finished a role in "Oil for the Lamps of China."

Wall St. Leaders Absorb Realizing; Specialties Gain

Associated Press

New York, Feb. 7.—Specialties exhibited strength in today's stock market while many of the recent leaders were forced to absorb considerable realizing.

Evening-up operations, usual in the final sessions of the week, were in evidence.

The close was slightly irregular. Transfers approximated 2,500,000 shares.

Trading got off to a bullish start with numerous stocks moving into new high territory for the last five years. Traders soon felt the profit taking urge, however, and some early gains were shaded or canceled. Late support helped selected issues.

Grains pointed lower and cotton milled about in a restricted area. Foreign exchanges were quiet, with the French franc still a bit below the gold export point. U.S. government securities eased.

Shares of Auburn pushed up around 4 points. Chrysler was a firm spot, along with Mack Truck, Electric Auto-Lite, Cuban-American Sugar, Crown Cork, Union Oil of California, Western Union, Western Pacific preferred, Delaware & Hudson, Southern Pacific, National Cash Register and Phillips Petroleum. American Can, Standard Oils of New Jersey and California, General Motors, Air Reduction and Santa Fe were backward.

Winnipeg Futures Follow Declines In Outside Marts

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Feb. 7.—Early fractional gains were erased as discouraged holders liquidated their wheat stocks on the Winnipeg grain exchange today. Prices closed 1⅛ to 1¼ cents lower, May at 85, July 85⅝ and October 85 cents.

Late-session declines in outside markets brought about a burst of selling in the final dealings of the Winnipeg exchange, and the swift recession was only stayed when resting orders at levels slightly under the market were uncovered.

Export sales of 300,000 bushels were sufficient to absorb the occasional offerings that trickled into the pit.

Liverpool closed ⅜ to ⅝d. lower. Chicago, too, was weak in late dealings. Buenos Aires was unchanged at noon.

Trade statistics were bearish.

Cash grains spreads were about unchanged in quiet trading. Coarse grains prices were liquidated with wheat in the final dealings.

LONG FLIGHT AT LOW COST

England-Capetown Hop May Cost D. Llewellyn Only $50

Canadian Press

Cairo, Feb. 7.—Two British fliers are now speeding toward Capetown in separate flights from London. One is seeking an air record and the other is out to prove anyone can make the flight.

Tommy Rose left here early to-day after making a fourteen-hour hop from London. He arrived at Khartum, in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, and immediately took off again. Although he seeks to break the route record, his trip is primarily for business. He may attempt a record return flight.

Flying Officer Davis Llewellyn took off from the Lympne, England, airport to-day in a midget plane. He hopes to reach Capetown in ten days.

CARRIES NO RADIO

Llewellyn's plane carries neither navigation lights nor wireless, and has a cruising speed of only eighty miles an hour. He estimates the journey will cost him about $50. He told friends before leaving he knew he was taking chances in discarding his wireless equipment, but he was confident he could get through safely and he wanted to prove the flight could be made in an ordinary plane "anyone can buy."

Llewellyn holds the Capetown to England air record of six days twelve hours and three minutes. This he made last November, with Mrs. Jill Wyndham, breaking Mrs. Amy Mollison's time by more than nineteen hours.

Union Head Gets $25,000 a Year

J. L. Lewis of United Mine Workers Voted Largest Labor Pay in U.S.

Associated Press

Washington, Feb. 7.—Over the protest of a large block of delegates, the United Mine Workers' convention yesterday increased the salary of John L. Lewis, president, from $12,000 to $25,000 a year.

A number of delegates made brief speeches in protest, while those favoring the raises for officers jeered and hooted. Some of the speakers favored smaller increases, while others told of hungry and barefooted miners in their districts.

While no absolute check was available here, labor men said they thought no other union president in the United States is paid more than $20,000 a year and expenses.

TEST FOR FEDERATION

The miners also voted to extend their membership to "coal processing plants." Observers feel this move may have important repercussions in the fight between craft and industrial unionists, now threatening to split the American Federation of Labor, should the miners attempt to organize skilled craftsmen in by-product coke plants.

EDITH CAVELL'S COMRADE DIES

Brussels, Feb. 7.—Mme. Ada Bodart, who aided British prisoners to escape from the Germans in Belgium to Holland during the World War, died today at the age of fifty-four.

She was sentenced to death with Edith Louisa Cavell, the British nurse with whom she collaborated in aiding prisoners, but Mme. Bodart escaped by pretending insanity. Miss Cavell was executed by a firing squad.

NEW DEBATE ON COLONIES

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 7.—Some members of Parliament are getting worried lest any British colonies should be handed over to foreign powers.

Two questions have been tabled in the House of Commons:

Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, proposes to ask if the Foreign Secretary will give any assurance the British government has no intention of handing over to the German Nazi government any territories at present held under a British mandate.

Sir Henry Page Croft, Conservative, intends to ask the Secretary for the Colonies for assurance the government is not considering handing over any British colonies, either under a mandate or otherwise, to foreign powers; that it is not prepared to make British colonies the subject of barter in any world conference.

RAW MATERIALS

Sir Samuel Hoare, when he was Foreign Secretary, told the League of Nations Assembly last September that Britain was prepared to participate in any effort to remove one of the possible causes of war by an international inquiry into redistribution of the essential raw materials.

In a commons debate on Wednesday Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George, war-time Prime Minister and one of the statesmen responsible for the Treaty of Versailles, declared: "I don't think you will have peace until you reconsider the mandates."

UNUSUAL BIRTH IN TORONTO

Canadian Press

Toronto, Feb. 7.—Doctors at the Toronto General Hospital said today a baby born six weeks late, six days ago, would live—and to make the case even more unusual, they said the mother would also live.

Only one baby in 5,000 cases is born under somewhat similar cases, Dr. W. N. Lailey and Dr. Jessie Gray, who cared for the mother and the infant, said. To have both the mother and child live through the necessarily delicate operation is almost unheard of.

Soviet Treaty With Roumania

New Mutual Assistance Pact Against Aggression Reported Near Completion

Canadian Press from Havas

London, Feb. 7.—A new mutual assistance treaty between Roumania and the Soviet Union, understood to be nearing completion, provides for prompt and automatic military cooperation in the event of aggression against either power, according to informed Little Entente circles.

The projected treaty would obligate Russia to send forces to Roumania's aid if the latter were attacked, while Roumania would undertake a similar obligation on behalf of the Soviet.

In the event of a conflict breaking out in central Europe, it is understood Soviet troops would be permitted to march through Bessarabia. That province, formerly Russian territory, was ceded to Roumania after the Great War. Russia has never formally recognized the change of status.

The treaty, according to Little Entente quarters, is framed along the same line as the Franco-Soviet and Soviet-Czechoslovak mutual assistance pacts.

W. L. BAILLIEU DIES IN LONDON

Canadian Press

New York, Feb. 7.—William Lawrence Baillieu, who was connected with several Australian newspapers and was a prominent industrialist of the Commonwealth, died yesterday in London, according to a special dispatch to The New York Times.

Mr. Baillieu, who was seventy-six, was a member of the board of directors of The Melbourne Herald and The Weekly Times.

He was a member of Victoria Legislative Council for twenty-one years and leader of the council 1912-7. He founded the Electrolytic Zinc Company of Australia and developed the Broken Hill Associated Smelters of South Australia.

Moncton Magistrate Clears Corp. J. H. Pettigrew of Obstruction Charge

Canadian Press

Moncton, N.B., Feb. 7.—A charge against Corporal J. H. Pettigrew of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, accusing him of "attempting to obstruct, defeat or pervert the course of justice," was dismissed by Magistrate W. F. Lane today and the corporal was exonerated.

In laying the charge, Mrs. May Bannister declared Pettigrew had threatened her in efforts to obtain information. She is charged with having kidnapped little Betty Lake, whose father, Philip, mother and baby brother met violent death at Pacific Junction, January 5. Mrs. Bannister's sons, Arthur and Daniel, have been committed for trial on a charge of murdering Philip Lake.

CAUCUS PLANS AT OTTAWA

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—The Liberal members are expected to hold a caucus next Wednesday. Conservative members will meet in caucus next Tuesday morning to consider plans for the session.

The Social Credit group, third largest in the House of Commons, has already held several meetings and will continue to meet daily until the session gets under way.

Social Credit members plan organization of a "special economic group," J. H. Blackmore, member for Lethbridge, and party leader, said today.

ENGINEERS ARE GIVEN MEDALS

Sir John Kennedy Award Goes to A. H. Harkness of Toronto

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 7.—The Sir John Kennedy Medal, given by the Engineering Institute of Canada to a leading member of the engineering profession from time to time, was presented yesterday evening to Andrew H. Harkness of Toronto, at the convention of the institute here. It is in recognition of noteworthy contributions to engineering science and of high professional standing.

The Past President's Prize of the Institute was awarded to J. B. DeHart of Lethbridge, Alta. The prize is a cash voucher for $100. Mr. DeHart was not present at the convention, but it will be given to him at the western meeting of the institute later in the year.

One of the most prized awards of the society, The Gzowski Medal, was given to P. L. Pratley of Montreal for a scientific paper on the substructure of the Second Narrow Bridge, Vancouver.

A paper by R. W. Diamond of Trail, B.C., won for him the Leonard Medal. His subject was the Trail heavy chemical plants.

A student prize was awarded to Z. Levinton of Saskatoon.

MAN IN JAIL AFTER A CHASE

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Feb. 7. — Edward F. Bishop of New Westminster, B.C., was remanded till Monday for sentence when he appeared before Magistrate H. S. Wood in police court here today and pleaded guilty to robbery of a drug store.

Bishop was captured yesterday evening after a lone gunman had held up a drug store at Commercial Drive and Kingsway and escaped with about $10. A toy pistol and $9.33 was found in his possession when he was arrested.

Witnesses of the holdup noticed the license number of the car in which the bandit fled and reported it to police. A call was sent out on the police radio and two officers in a patrol car saw the wanted automobile on Victoria Drive. They gave chase and captured Bishop at Hastings and Kamloops streets.

Tarzan The Untamed

Tarzan was standing some distance away when Colonel Capell arrived. He saw that officer greet his junior in command; then he saw him turn toward Olga. The ape-man wondered how the Red spy fell in this situation, especially when she must know that Tarzan was watching and knew her for a traitor. He saw the Colonel greet her cordially.

He could not hear their words, but all seemed on the best of terms. Tarzan turned away scowling. If any had been close by they might have heard a low growl rumble from his chest. Knowing his country was at war with the Reds, Tarzan also knew it was his duty to expose the girl's perfidy. And yet he hesitated. He did not see her before she left.

Already had he spoken farewell to Roger. Now he stood watching until the plane disappeared, a tiny speck in the eastern sky. The Tommies were waiting orders to begin the return march. Colonel Capell, ready to go with them, sought out Tarzan. "I wish you'd come with us, Greystoke," he said. "Lieutenant Cecil and the young woman want you to.

"No," replied Tarzan, "I shall go on my way, alone. Cecil and Olga Baresch were only prompted by a sense of gratitude in considering my welfare." "Olga Baresch!" exclaimed Capell. Then he laughed. "You know her, then, as Olga, the Red spy? Is that ALL you know?" "Yes," answered Tarzan, "and that's enough." "You're mistaken," said Capell.

Tells How You Can Make Others Happy | Money-giving Is Not Charity

THE THING THAT MOST OF US envy the rich for is not their palaces or their yachts or their swanky cars or their jewels nor any of the luxuries they possess, but their ability to help others. It must be such a glorious thing, we feel, to establish hospitals, build schools, libraries and homes for old people and little children, and to help alleviate the misery of the world.

But we are wrong when we think of giving in terms of money alone; still wrong when we think that there is no need except physical want, and we are thrice wrong when we think that because we have not money to give we have nothing to give.

There is a hunger of the soul as well as of the body, and many a man and woman who sit down to tables laden with food every day are starving for a little understanding and sympathy. There are people who live in palaces who are just as homeless as any wanderer of the streets and who would be just as grateful to be given a warm seat at your fireside and a few words of friendship as any tramp would be for a handout. There are millions and millions of people dressed like Solomon in all his glory who are freezing to death in loneliness.

The poorest of us have always ourselves to give, and that is the most precious gift that any one can bestow upon another. A woman who worked for a small wage once said to me:

"I am desperately poor. I can barely exist on what I earn and I haven't a penny that I can give to anyone, but I never let anyone go from me without giving them a cheerful thought. I tell a pretty girl that her eyes are like sapphires. I tell a middle-aged woman how beautiful her new frock is. I compliment an ambitious youngster on the good work he is doing and tell him that I know he will climb to the top of the ladder. I pass on the pleasant speeches that I hear about people. And I never tell anyone anything that will hurt or depress them.

"Not much can I do for anyone, but when I have given a man and woman something pleasant to think about, I think, perhaps it is worth as much to them as a little money would be. Once a man, who has made a great success, told me that I had saved him from failure. He had grown despondent and discouraged and was about to give up when something I said to him put fresh courage into him and enabled him to make the final effort that carried him over the top."

When we can all follow this woman's example and give a few kind words to those about us, isn't is curious how stingy we are about doing it? Yet we all know their value and we all know that they are what we really long for more than anything else on earth. Many a wife whose husband gives her a string of matched pearls on her birthday would far rather he would say to her: "My darling, to me you are the only woman in the world, far more beautiful than any Miss America, and I love you a thousand times more than I did when I married you. You've been a wonderful wife, I thank God on my knees every night for giving you to me, and I only pray that we may go hand in hand down to our golden wedding day."

All that a man needs to lighten his labor and take the sting out of the sacrifices he makes for his family is for his wife to give him a pat on the head now and then and say: "Good old Roger."

We don't list boredom among the philanthropies, yet can anything be a greater act of charity than to invite dull and stupid people to dinner now and then? Or to listen with sympathy while the whiners tell you their grievances? Or while rapturous mothers tell you how marvelous their offspring are, and egotists blow their own trumpets.

Such of us as have not the martyr complex avoid tiresome people as we do the plague, and they are as much cut off from social intercourse as if they did have the smallpox. There are men who can empty a clubroom by merely looking in at the door. There are women who are never asked anywhere, not even invited to join a "cause." These poor souls are lonely beyond belief and it is just as much an act of benevolence to give them a little of your time and attention as it would be to drop a quarter in any mendicant's tincup. So don't think because you haven't any money to give you haven't anything to bestow. You've always got yourself.

Uncle Wiggily's New Piano

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Uncle Wiggily had bought a new piano for his wife. He said Nurse Jane might also play on it when she had finished giving the dishes their bath and had put the clock to sleep.

The piano came to the hollow stump bungalow in a large box and when the delivery dogs had taken the piano out of the box and had put the piano in the bungalow and set the big box outside, they drove away in their auto.

"Oh, it's a lovely piano," said Mrs. Longears as she tinkled a few keys. "And it's time we had one."

"I thought so myself," said Uncle Wiggily. "Our old one was beginning to sound like a tin pan."

"No wonder, with the children using it for a jumping board when they play go swimming on the parlor floor," said Nurse Jane.

"And pouring molasses down between the keys of any piano doesn't make it sound any sweeter," said Mrs. Longears.

"Who poured molasses on our old piano keys?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

TRYING TO CONVERT IT

"Oh, some of the children," said his wife, laughing. "They were trying to make it sound like a radio. Anyhow, I'm glad we have a new one."

"I'm glad you like it," said Uncle Wiggily, and he was going to try to do a little playing himself when Baby Bunty and some of the rabbit girls came hopping into the bungalow all out of breath and excited.

"Unkie Wig!" called Baby Bunty, "may we have the box the piano came in for a play house?"

"Why, I guess so," said Mr. Longears. "Is it big enough?"

"Oh, it's plenty big," said Bunty.

Then she and the other little rabbits sat down to hear Mrs. Longears play on Uncle Wiggily's new piano while Uncle Wiggily himself hopped out to the back yard where the empty piano box had been left.

"I must see if it is large enough for Bunty and the others to use for a play house," said Mr. Longears.

The piano box was really quite large. It was high and wide and it had a top that could be lifted up and down on hinges like a trap door in an attic.

"If the children use it for a play house I'll make them a door in the side that will open and shut like a regular door," said Uncle Wiggily. "Now I'd better get in the box myself to see if it is large enough for the children to play in."

HOPS INTO BOX

So into the empty box he hopped. He pulled the hinged top down over his head and found there was plenty of room. It was so snug and cozy inside the piano box that Uncle Wiggily sat down in a corner and, before he knew it, he had fallen asleep.

And while Uncle Wiggily slept inside the box and while his wife was playing the new piano in the bungalow along came the Fox and Wolf. The Bad Chaps saw the piano box out in the yard and the Fox said:

"Let's take that away. Maybe we can make a boat of it when summer comes and have some fun."

"Sure!" agreed the Wolf. So the two Bad Chaps lifted up the piano box and were walking away with it when Uncle Wiggily, inside, awakened. Feeling himself being carried along he cried:

"Hey! Drop it! Let me down! No tricks now!" For he thought it might be Mr. Twistytail and Mr. Stubbytail playing a joke.

But the Fox and Wolf, hearing a voice coming out of the piano box quickly set it down and ran away and the Fox said:

"That must have been a radio broadcasting station. It talked!"

"Yes," agreed the Wolf. "I guess it was."

Then Uncle Wiggily climbed out of the box and hopped into the bungalow. And if the postman will stick the stamp on the letter with some molasses taffy, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's funny watch.

The Saanich Council yesterday evening re-appointed H. C. Oldfield as its representative on the Royal Oak Cemetery board of directors. Mr. Oldfield was thanked by resolution for his services during the last three years.

NAME TRUSTEES AT LADYSMITH

Ladysmith, Feb. 7.—Thomas Proudfoot has been appointed to the Ladysmith Board of School Trustees for a one-year term and John Rogers for a two-year term. This action was necessary to fill the two vacancies left on election day, when only one member was nominated for three vacancies.

At a special meeting Wednesday evening the board released one of the public school staff, E. Akenhead, to permit him to assume a position as organizer for the Union Library in the Okanagan district.

W. Jones, public school principal, recommended that a male teacher be procured for the staff vacancy.

A special meeting will be called to accept a nominee for the vacancy.

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1936

This is an uncertain day in planetary direction, according to astrology. But there is a promising sign for travel, especially by airplane.

Industry continues subject to sinister signs that seem to presage a long labor struggle that will finally be adjusted after an event of national moment.

Women today may meet obstacles blocking their best laid plans. Disappointments in connection with domestic affairs are probable. Husbands may be late to their own dinner parties.

This is a lucky day for girls to meet eligible young men. College students should be fortunate under this rule of the stars.

There is a sign that is read as encouraging deceit and untruthfulness. Gain through misrepresentation will be very brief in its duration.

March is to be a month of great hardship and suffering in Europe. Germany, Italy and Austria will be affected.

Wars and rumors of wars will multiply as the spring advances. Warning is given that the white race is in great peril unless peace is maintained among the nations, for there are strange portents in the stars.

King George of Greece may find opposition next April when Mars and Herschel form a conjunction on his progressed moon. His return to the throne was prognosticated a year ago.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of progress and contentment. Changes that are beneficial are indicated.

Children born on this day probably will be strong in mind and body. The subjects of this sign usually are exceedingly successful and popular.

John Ruskin, English writer, was born on this day, 1819. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include William Tecumseh Sherman, Civil War general, 1820, and Jules Verne, French novelist, 1828.

HUGE PROFIT ON WARSHIP

Vessel Costing $11,500,000 Makes Profit of $3,000,000 For Builder

Washington, Feb. 7.—A $3,000,000 profit on an $11,500,000 warship was attributed to the New York Shipbuilding Company in expert testimony delivered yesterday before the United States Senate munitions committee.

Added to this was an estimate that for $48,000,000 the government could equip itself for manufacture of most of its fighting implements.

The evidence was presented by Charles H. Spencer, head valuation engineer of the Interstate Commerce Commission, after exhaustive studies comparing construction costs in local and private shipyards. In addition, he estimated the reproduction cost of important machine gun, aircraft and explosive plants.

He found that the average cost to the governments of cruisers built by the New York Shipbuilding Company was $14,994,667, as compared with an average of $14,065,204 for equivalent vessels built in navy yards, despite a 20 per cent higher wage scale in the latter.

ESTEVAN ON ISLAND TRIP

Lighthouse Tender Anchored Yesterday at Ucluelet; Due Here in Few Weeks

On a month's cruise around Vancouver Island, the Dominion Government's lighthouse tender Estevan was reported anchored at Ucluelet yesterday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock. She will not be back here until the end of the month.

The cold snap may hinder the Estevan's work. In such weather it will be difficult for the men to discharge supplies at lighthouses and to repair buoys, several of which were damaged in recent heavy winter gales.

After rounding the northern end of Vancouver Island the Estevan will steam down the east coast to her headquarters in Victoria.

The smaller tender Berens is at present tied up in the Inner Harbor, while members of her crew take their holidays.

The government's hydrographic survey steamer Wm. J. Stewart, which has been "sleeping" in the Inner Harbor for several months, has a few more months of idleness before she starts to wake up and prepare for her season in coastal waters. She usually leaves the harbor early in April.

Plane Dives Into Street

Two German Planes Smash in Mid-air and Kill Pedestrians on Street

Munich, Germany, Feb. 7.—Two airplanes rammed each other 4,000 feet over Munich yesterday, one falling into the Neunhäuser-strasse, one of the city's leading business streets. The four occupants of the planes escaped alive, but three pedestrians were killed.

The plane which fell in the street knocked down the facade of a building, killing three persons and injuring several other pedestrians.

Street car wires were broken, causing a short circuit, which tied up one-fourth of the city. A store caught fire and was badly damaged.

The pilot and mechanic of one plane were hurt, but the two occupants of the other ship were uninjured. All four "bailed out" with parachutes.

The second plane fell in the suburb of Schwabing.

ONCE WORKED ON EMPRESSES

Vancouver, Feb. 7.—Funeral services will be held here tomorrow for John Davidson, seventy-two, pioneer resident of Vancouver and former carpenter foreman for the Union Steamship Company, who died yesterday.

Davidson was born in Scotland and came to Vancouver in 1890. He worked as a ship's carpenter on the Canadian Pacific "Empresses" for several years and joined the Union Steamship Company staff in 1898, working for that company until he retired in 1933 because of ill health.

He is survived by a widow, two sons and a daughter here and a son, George, in Port Alberni.

DESTROYERS NEAR CANAL

Skeena and Vancouver, After Visit to Acapulco, Will Reach Balboa Monday

Acapulco, Mexico, Feb. 7.—After spending five days at this old Mexican port, where sailing ships always called in days gone by for coal, the Canadian destroyers Skeena and Vancouver, from the West Coast station at Esquimalt, B.C., sailed from here on Wednesday for the Panama Canal.

On her way down the coast the Vancouver called at Manzanillo for fuel oil and rejoined the Skeena here February 1. During their stay in port the officers and men of both ships were informally entertained, all formal functions having been called off because of the death of King George V. Officers wore black armbands of mourning.

The Skeena and the Vancouver are due to reach Balboa, at the Pacific entrance to the Panama Canal on Monday next. They will remain there a few days before going through the Canal en route to the West Indies.

Belize, British Honduras, Feb. 7.—On their way to join their sister ships from the Pacific Coast, H.M.C.S. Saguenay and H.M.C.S. Champlain of the Halifax station of the Canadian Navy spent three days here, having arrived from Montego Bay on Monday and leaving again yesterday.

The Saguenay is on her way to Galveston, Texas and the Champlain to Port Arthur, Texas. Both will arrive there on Monday and will leave February 16 for Kington where they will join the Skeena and the Vancouver for naval manoeuvres.

LINER TRAVELS TO BE SECRET

Only Commander of Ss. Queen Mary Will Know When Tests Being Run

Montreal, Feb. 7.—Preparations are being completed for the important engine tests to which the new Cunard - White Star super-liner, Queen Mary will be subjected before she leaves the basin of John Brown's shipyard, Clydebank, Scotland.

The rigid task of inspection, under the joint supervision of company and shipyard experts, is expected to occupy several weeks, although preliminary surveys have already been carried out. The four thirty-five-ton propellers have already been temporarily disconnected from their 227-foot long shaftings, and furnaces and boilers lighted, but every particle of the ship's machinery will undergo minute and severe tests in the yards before the actual speed trials, which will take place beyond the Heads of Arran, in the Firth of Clyde. Prior to proceeding on her speed trials the Queen Mary will leave Clydebank about March 24 next and proceed to Southampton, where she will enter the new Southampton drydock to be prepared for the trials some weeks later.

SECRET TRIALS

The speed trials of the Queen Mary will be conducted with the utmost secrecy. Not a single soul of the 560 carried aboard, except Sir Edgar Britten, the commander, will know just when the tests have actually begun or ended.

During the speed trials messages will be exchanged between the commander and the engine room in code instead of by telephone, giving details of the vessel's speed and behavior. These messages will be recorded in cipher on perforated tape, similar to quotations on a stock ticker.

For fear the superliner may swamp yachts and houses on shore during these special manoeuvres, the speed trials of the Queen Mary will be carried out beyond the Heads of Arran in the Firth of Clyde instead of over the usual measured mile at Skelmorlie, off the Ayrshire coast, or in Wemyss Bay. The Queen Mary will speed over her trial course twenty-five times, anchoring at night off the Tail of the Bank. Later, on leaving the Clyde, three further tests will be carried out. Stern tests to ascertain the ship's speed while going hard astern will be made off Land's End when sailing to Southampton. Manoeuvring trials will then be carried out to find the area required and the time the liner will take to turn completely around. Later there will be consumption trials in the Atlantic to discover the oil fuel consumption per twenty-four hour period.

"TRISTAN" WILL BE ON AIR SATURDAY

The Metropolitan Opera's greatest box office attraction, Kirsten Flagstad in "Tristan and Isolde," will be brought to radio listeners from coast to coast over NBC's combined networks tomorrow, commencing at 10.40 a.m., P.S.T., and concluding about 2.30 p.m.

GRAIN CARGOES PAY BIG DUTY

Freighters Mount Pera and Uganda Pay $83,000 As Duty on Their Freight

Seattle, Feb. 7.—Nearly 10,000 tons of yellow grain from the Argentine, attracted to Puget Sound by high prices caused by crop failures in the mid-west, were in Seattle today aboard two ships, the Greek freighter Mount Pera and the British freighter Uganda, both from Buenos Aires.

The Mount Pera arrived early yesterday morning with 4,000 tons of South American corn and berthed at Albers Mill.

The Uganda arrived during the late afternoon with over 5,000 tons and went to the Great Northern elevator.

The corn paid a duty of twenty-five cents a bushel, which amounted to approximately $83,000 for the two cargoes.

The Mount Pera is being handled by W. S. Murison of the Harvey Shipping Company. The vessel will go from Seattle to British Columbia ports to load Canadian lumber for United States Atlantic ports under charter to Seaboard Sales Limited.

The Uganda is under charter to the Pacific Continental Grain Company for her inward voyage. She will go from the Sound to British Columbia to load a full cargo of lumber and logs for Shanghai. The Ocean Shipping Company will handle her at B.C. ports.

PRAIRIE FOLK HAWAII BOUND

Bound for the Hawaiian Islands, where they hope to escape for a few days the rigors of a Canadian winter, a party of forty tourists from Edmonton, Calgary, Regina, Winnipeg and other prairie points will sail from Victoria tomorrow afternoon aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan.

The party will be under the personal direction of R. W. Greene, assistant general steamship agent for the Canadian Pacific at Edmonton.

After ten days in the islands, the prairie group will sail on the return voyage aboard the Ss. Empress of Canada, due here March 1.

TAKES DOORS, LUMBER HERE

Capt. Salmon Jones Master of British Freighter Everleigh, Now in Port

It may have been because he felt he had to live up to his name that first sent him to sea. At any rate the master of the British freighter Everleigh, now loading lumber at Ogden Point is Capt. Salmon Jones. Salmon is a Welsh name and may have nothing at all to do with the fish of the same name that inhabits the sea.

Capt. Salmon, who is a veteran deep-sea navigator, has been into Victoria many times before and has many friends along the waterfront.

He broughgt his ship this time into Victoria early yesterday morning. She is taking over 800,000 feet of Vancouver Island lumber and 5,500 doors for the United Kingdom. The doors, which were manufactured in Victoria will be used in some of London's new homes.

This evening King Brothers expect to get the Everleigh away to Port Alberni to complete.

Beatty Speaks To Engineers

Canadian Press

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 7.—Competition between railways and motor trucks is still far from established on a proved economic basis, Sir Edward Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, said yesterday evening in an address before the Engineering Institute of Canada, in annual convention here.

He defended the railways against a charge that they had not adequately attempted to meet the competition of road-borne traffic. Conditions in the highway transportation business were unsatisfactory even to those engaged in it, Sir Edward suggested.

CONSTRUCTION AND MARKETING

Sir Edward said there had been considerable confusion as to the extent of damage done to railways by highway competition. While Canada's total volume of business had increased since 1928, construction and the marketing of agricultural export commodities totaled only 30 to 50 per cent of the 1926 figures.

There was no reason to be surprised that carloadings during the period were only about 66.8 per cent of the 1926 volume since these were industries which ordinarily contributed most to railway traffic. It was certain that motor truck competition was not the chief factor in delaying recovery of freight movement by rail.

The public's general opinion, he said, that railways were "asleep at the switch" in not intelligently combating highway transportation was wholly baseless.

NEW HIGHWAYS

"Railways could not hope to meet at a profit the major part of the competition of private motor cars. Expension of private motor car use and the increased importance of tourist business led to improvement in existing highways and construction of a great mileage of new roads. It would have been bad policy for the railways to oppose "this natural development of social economic life."

Completes Long Trip By Canoe

Washington Man Paddles Nearly 4,000 Miles and Ends Trip at New Orleans

New Orleans, Feb. 7.—Gwilym Williams, twenty-eight, of Everett, Wash., arrived here yesterday, pushed his canoe up on the beach and announced he had just finished paddling down the longest river system in the world. He started at the source of the Missouri River and finished here.

Paddling down the Missouri River from Three Forks, Mont., the youth followed part of the course of the historic Lewis and Clark Expedition, through the Bad Lands of Montana, across both Dakotas and through the Missouri River Valley in Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri.

It was on August 27 that Williams pushed his seventeen-foot canoe off into the current at Three Forks for his 3,800-mile journey.

"But I must have covered at least 4,000 miles on account of the numerous times I crossed and recrossed the river in an effort to take advantage of the current," he said today.

Most of his nights en route were spent in the open on the banks of the river.

"I would roll up in a blanket and tarpaulin and would even sleep in the rain. I didn't catch cold," he said.

Williams is a resort operator by profession, but his hobby is exploring river by canoe.

"When he left Montana he said he might ship his canoe to South America upon his arrival here and make a trip up the Amazon.

WILL RELEASE LUMBER SHIPS

Fourteen Ships Expected to Sail From San Pedro By Next Monday

San Francisco, Feb. 7.—The two-month tie up of coastwise schooners was ended yesterday as the Shipowners' Association of the Pacific Coast announced acceptance of a Sailors' Union return-to-work offer.

The first request for a crew was made to the Sailors' Union of the Pacific dispatching hall here by the Hammond Lumber Company for the schooner Brunswick—one of sixty-four idle on the coast.

Firemen were requested for the schooners Edna Christenson and the Brookings, and it was expected that orders for full crews would follow. Fourteen ships were expected to be released in San Pedro by Monday.

Sailors' Union officials expressed gratification with the end of the tie-up, started when the seamen demanded an in-port work day of six instead of eight hours.

Under the true, the sailors will resume the eight-hour schedule and other conditions of an "award" contract made by a mediation board after the 1934 maritime strike.

GREAT SEAS SMASH BOATS

Ss. Eglantine Reaches Yokohama After Attempt to Rescue Japanese Ship

Tokio, Feb. 7.—The American steamer Eglantine reached Yokohama yesterday, with officers bringing a tale of a thirty-hour fight with a storm in an attempt to save a Japanese fishing boat.

The lifeboats and the wireless room of the Eglantine, which sailed out of Galveston, Tex., for Yokohama, were smashed and they lost sight of the fishing boat, the Deshima Maru, in a snowstorm. The fishing vessel, however, was reported to have reached port under its own power yesterday, after being refuled by a Japanese freighter.

The Eglantine's skipper, Capt. J. A. Cronin, said the Deshima Maru was first sighted in rough seas February 4, drifting with its fuel exhausted. A tow-line was placed aboard the vessel and the Eglantine started for Yokohama, but the line parted as the wind—which accompanied Japan's worst blizzard in twenty years—whipped up the sea.

The Eglantine stood by the Deshima Maru for several hours. When the Eglantine's boats were smashed, however, the Deshima Maru got out of sight in the snowstorm, the captain said.
